'CHARGES NOT PLEASANT'

Pearson Shrugs Off Pacifist Charges of Viet Genocide

By PETE LOUDON, Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Prime Minister Pearson today appeared unmoved by peace demonstrations denouncing Canada's alleged involvement in the Vietnam war.

"I think our bluntness and frankness should be limited to confidential discussions rather than public statements," he said.

He was speaking at a press conference here following an unfriendly welcome at Vancouver airport Thursday by pacifist demonstrators. Their signs accused him of being an accomplice in genocide.

"I don't appreciate being accused of killing babies every day."

In the U.S., he said, people accuse him of not showing enough support to the U.S. war in Vietnam.

The prime minister said some of the placards carried by peace demonstrators don't make much sense. They accused him of supplying arms to be used in Vietnam.

He said Canada has a defence-sharing agreement with the U.S. as part of the NATO alliance. This would have to be scrapped if none of the war supply exchange material could go to Vietnam.

In any event what Canada supplies the U.S. "is not the type of equipment they are using there."

"If we put strings on it, it would end the alliance," he said.

On Thursday he said persons protesting the death of children in Vietnam should make their complaints to the U.S. government.

An RCMP spokesman said before the press conference that anti-U.S. war groups were planning a major peace demonstration in the vicinity of the Hotel Vancouver tonight. The Liberal party will hold a banquet there for the prime minister.

Some reporters entering the press conference were questioned by police, and they said U.S. secret service would take over security when the prime minister leaves for Santa Barbara, Calif., Sunday.

He will speak at a university convocation ceremony there and receive an honorary degree.

Questioned on the security measures, the prime minister said, "I have noticed a good many security people and I'm grateful for their attention." He didn't know if security was tighter than usual.

Mr. Pearson was closely questioned on federal participation in Vancouver harbor development plans and assistance in construction of a third harbor crossing here.

He said he had received a telegram from Premier Bennett, saying a formula for provision of a bridge had been worked out with Mayor Tom Campbell of Vancouver (some estimates put the cost at $100 million).

The prime minister said Premier Bennett recommended its acceptance to the federal government.

"That's not an invitation to participate in talks," said Mr. Pearson.

He repeated several times that the new crossing is "primarily a provincial responsibility" but there was some justification for federal participation.

9 Island Tickets Drawn

Irish Sweep Set Wednesday

Nine Vancouver Islanders are in the running for the Irish Sweepstake grand prize of $150,000.

Of the 278 Canadians whose tickets were drawn on horses today, four are from Victoria, two from Ladysmith, two from Port Alberni and one from Campbell River.

They will know the final outcome next Wednesday when the Lincolnshire Handicap is run at Doncaster, England.

Holders of tickets on the winner will each receive $150,000, with prizes of $60,000 and $30,000 for holders of tickets on the second and third finishers.

All those who have drawn horses will get about $1,300, which goes to those with non-starters or horses which finish out of the money. The actual amount is based on the total amount in the pool.

The draw is the first of three held each year in the international lottery set up to aid hospitals in the Irish Republic.

Vancouver Island tickets drawn are: (number, non-departure, and horse, in brackets) —

PTQ 67074, NNDP (Farandole), Victoria.

WIRE BRIEFS

Cows to Slaughter

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — The National Farmers Organization, its militant milk-dumping actions hit by government-imposed restrictions, will start selling dairy cows for slaughter next Monday, NFO president Oren Lee Staley said today.

Orbiter Quits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency said today Lunar Orbiter 3 has stopped sending pictures of the moon's surface, but scientists have enough photographs to select an Apollo landing site. The spacecraft was launched Feb. 4.

Man Ejected

TORONTO (CP) — Police are searching for a man who was ejected from the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board hospital Thursday, less than 24 hours before a dormitory ward fire today killed one patient and injured at least 29 others. (See page 3.)

Huntley Rebuffed

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC news commentator Chet Huntley appealed personally to 40 colleagues today to abandon their strike against the four major television and radio networks. He received a strong rebuff from CBS newscaster Walter Cronkite.

"The time to get out of the union is before the strike," said Cronkite. (See page 23.)

New Tory Whip

SASKATOON (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today that Reynold Rapp (PC — Humboldt-Melford-Tisdale) will take over as Conservative party whip in the House of Commons.

... governor-general?

Michener Hinted As Viceroy

NEW DELHI (AP) — Indian protocol officials said today they have been told unofficially that Canadian high commissioner Roland Michener may have to leave India "on short notice" to accept an appointment as Governor-General of Canada.

They said they were told of this "likelihood" at a diplomatic reception Thursday night.

Michener was still in New Delhi today and a high commission spokesman said "we have no indication he will be leaving in the next three or four days."

But informed diplomatic sources said "there was a strong possibility" he would be named to succeed Governor-General Georges F. Vanier who died March 5.

Michener has been high commissioner to India since September, 1964.

In Ottawa, political observers said it seemed certain that Prime Minister Pearson will announce the name of Canada's new Governor-General next Tuesday in the Commons.

Most speculation there has been that the choice is Michener, a former Conservative MP and former Commons speaker.

However, Michener, 67, next April 19, told The Associated Press today that the rumors "are just speculation" and that he could not comment further on the matter.

Burly Soviet Defence Chief Dies At 68

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Defence Minister Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky has died, Tass reported today.

Malinovsky, 68, was reported to have been stricken by cancer.

The Second World War leader of Soviet troops who stormed into Berlin has been ill for months.

The burly, gruff-voiced soldier had been noted in recent years for his tough speeches delivered from Lenin's tomb at May Day and Bolshevik Revolution anniversary parades through Red Square.

Speaking with an expression on his face that many observers compared with that of a bulldog, he castigated U.S. policy in Vietnam and West German policy in some of the strongest terms heard here.

Defence minister since 1957, he presided over the modernization of the Soviet armed forces with nuclear missiles and more recently with new ground-warfare equipment and an anti-ballistic missile defence system still under construction.

First Hydro Raise Since B.C. Takeover

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Electricity rates went up a half cent per kilowatt-hour today following a steady series of rate cuts since B.C. Hydro became publicly owned six years ago.

It will mean up to $1.50 per month added to domestic consumers' bills.

The increase will bring $7 million more into Hydro's treasury in the 1967-68 fiscal year, still leaving Hydro customers better off than they were before the takeover, the utility company said.

Instead of a $30 million a year saving as a result of the progressive rate cuts, the public will be saving $23 million, co-chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said.

Hydro said the increase was necessary to help cover rising operating costs, which increased $13.7 million between April 1966 and the end of February this year.

The new rate, which will be applied to the first 300 kilowatt-hours.

Ex-Socred Candidate Holds Up Bank

Mainland Man Pleads Guilty

BURNABY (CP) — Stanley Desmond Kermeen, 36, who was remanded to April 14, Thursday, when he pleaded guilty to bank robbery, was a prominent New Westminster businessman and once a Social Credit candidate.

Kermeen was arrested following a $2,027 holdup of a Bank of Montreal branch Thursday, and four hours later pleaded guilty to the charge in magistrate's court to "get it over with."

He told the magistrate he desperately needed money because he had been the victim of a confidence man who left him holding $1,200 worth of bad cheques.

Kermeen is owner-operator of a New Westminster storage locker company, ran as a Social Credit candidate in the 1960 provincial election when he was defeated by 461 votes and was once president of the Royal Columbian Hospital in New Westminster.

He was former president of the New Westminster Social Credit constituency organization and also ran in the 1956 provincial election. He was defeated both times by Rae Edzie of the New Democratic Party.

USED NOTE

The court was told Kermeen pushed a note demanding money at a teller, showed a gun and then ran from the bank when a bank employee yelled there was a holdup.

He was chased by the employees and a customer, wrestled back to the bank and locked inside a safety deposit vault while police were called.

Police said they found the gun was a toy when they demanded it be thrown from the vault before they moved in to make the arrest.

U.S. Railway Strike Set At Midnight

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — A nationwide U.S. railway strike is still set for 12:01 a.m. local time Saturday, the head of the Order of Railroad Conductors and Brakemen said today.

President Clyde F. Lane denied reports that the walkout of some 15,500 union members had been called off.

The strike would tie up about 65 per cent of U.S. railways. Rail officials have threatened a court action to halt the walkout.

The ORCB called the strike on grounds the railways are cutting insurance coverage as of Saturday in violation of the Railway Labor Act.

A strike by the ORCB would hit most major U.S. rail lines.

BUS DRIVER GETS $10 TIP AND ONE THOUSAND THANKS

OTTAWA (CP) — Denyse Goodman gave a bus driver what she thought was a $2 bill Thursday night. A few hours later she discovered that a $1,000 bill given her by her father as a gift was missing from her purse.

Bus driver Fernand Leclair, obligingly checked through his cash and turned up the missing bill. "I started shaking when I realized what it was," he said.

The $2 and $1,000 banknotes are similar in color.

Miss Goodman gave him $10, plus the $2 replacement.

Nurses Threaten Mass Resignation In Pay Dispute

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — More than 450 nurses employed in Lower Mainland provincial mental hospitals voted Thursday night to resign June 1 unless the government establishes an impartial arbitration board to consider their demand for a 25 per cent pay increase.

At two mass meetings here, the nurses voted to hand in their resignations April 28, effective June 1.

"This could be very serious indeed," said Dr. B. F. Bryson, superintendent of the 3,000-patient Riverview Hospital.

"I have to take a neutral stand, but I am certainly sympathetic to the nurses on staff who are not paid in relation to other types of work. They should be paid according to their experience and training."

Mrs. Faye Hartford of Surrey, secretary of the Psychiatric Nurses Association, said the starting salary for psychiatric nurses is $382 a month, rising to $432 in six years.

The 456 nurses who voted to resign represent half the nursing staff in Lower Mainland mental institutions. A further 450, unable to attend two Thursday meetings, will be approached individually.

Nurses from Vernon and Kamloops will meet today in Trankilops. There are 1,150 nurses in seven government mental hospitals. They have rejected government offers of from five to seven per cent.

BLAZE KILLS 5 IN FAMILY

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) — A mother, her invalid daughter and three other children perished this morning when fire raced through their home at Deer Lake, Nfld., 30 miles east of here.

Police withheld the names of the victims.

Foot-High Snowfall Snarls Saskatchewan Traffic

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Saskatchewan residents dug themselves out today after the worst storm of the winter dumped up to 13 inches of snow on the province in two days.

Saskatoon weather officials reported 10.6 inches Thursday after a Wednesday total of more than two inches.

Fanned by winds gusting 40 to 45 miles an hour, the snowfall was the largest in the city since 1962 when 12 inches fell. Visibility in many parts of the province was about half a mile.

Dozens of motorists were stranded as highways plugged throughout the province. Three teenagers, including two daughters of George Leith, Liberal MLA for Elrose, were jammed in a phone booth on Saskatoon's outskirts for six hours Thursday after they stepped from a train and could not be reached.

The sisters and Michele Proby, a friend from British Columbia, finally flagged down another train at 11 p.m.

The Saskatoon city transit system cut service well before midnight Thursday and spent many hours attempting to return stranded units to the garage.

Air Canada said planes had no difficulty landing at Saskatoon Airport during the blizzard, marked by temperatures of about 15 above. Four massive snowblowers worked through the night on runways. The eastbound CNR Pano-rama crept into Saskatoon nearly six hours late and the westbound Supercontinental was delayed more than two hours.

Home deliveries of milk and bread were cancelled. Officials said extra milk would be left at stores to protect against a possible long siege.

Officials reported a concentration of stranded cars and people in the Hepburn and Delisle districts.

In Saskatoon, many large stores were closed but smaller ones remained open. Banks remained open but reported up to half their employees absent.

Work at the Potash Co. of America mine near Saskatoon was carried on by men working double shifts. Most other mines shut down.

Only one fatality was reported despite dozens of accidents.

William James Taylor, 19, of Winnipeg, was killed when his car collided with a semi-trailer truck near Maple Creek, about 80 miles southwest of Swift Current.

RCMP said it was snowing heavily at the time.

Prince Albert was just on the fringe of the storm, but all areas south of the city were struck. Winds at Prince Albert reached 55 m.p.h. but less than two inches of snow fell.

Bus schedules to points south of Prince Albert were cancelled and buses to other areas were delayed several hours.

The Prince Albert peewee all-star hockey team, travelling in several cars to Weyburn, was forced to stop at Watrous. One car was missing all night, but the boys were located in Simpson today.

TRAIN RESCUES TEENAGERS

All I kin say is: we better git used t' bein' t' about power late increases.

Scuffin' through th' blossom petals, it's hard t' realize other folks use snow as a substitute.

Fer some TV programs, no news is good news.

300 Flee Hospital Blaze

One Man Dies, 29 Injured

TORONTO (CP) — One man was killed and 29 other persons were injured today when fire broke out in a three-storey dormitory at the Workmen's Compensation Board rehabilitation centre in suburban North York.

The dead man was identified as Francesco Gaultieri, 35, of Toronto. The body was found sprawled across the bed of another ward patient, John Downie of Garson, Ont., who was later found alive and well.

A spokesman at the 525-bed centre said none of the injured patients were harmed seriously. They were taken to three area hospitals suffering from burns, smoke inhalation and minor injuries caused by jumping to safety from second- and third-storey windows.

Fourteen of those taken to hospital were released by mid-morning.

More than 300 patients at the centre were forced to flee the blaze, discovered about 3:30 a.m.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Cause of the fire is not known but it is believed to have started in a television recreation lounge. Firemen, who fought the blaze for two hours, confined fire damage to the second floor.

Joe Barbeau, of Peterborough, Ont., one of the patients who anxiously watched the scene of the fire in safety, said afterwards a small yard enclosed by the hospital buildings looked like a "courtyard of death."

Dozens of patients were at the windows screaming for help. They tied sheets, blankets and window drapes together and climbed down, choking and almost blind from the smoke.

Sometimes the hastily-tied knots came undone and a man would plunge down two or three floors, landing on broken glass and chairs used to break the windows.

"I'll never forget it," Mr. Barbeau said. "They couldn't get ladders to them and we couldn't get through the corridors and we just had to stand there and stare. I never felt so useless in my life."

USE LADDERS

Firemen finally got two ladders through from the front of the building and helped several patients who were still hanging out the windows.

When everybody was out of the burning section, they got those stranded on the roof down the ladders.

Fifty North York firemen arrived in 10 trucks four minutes after the fire was reported. They brought men from windows, across roofs, out of hallways.

Charge 'Slanderous'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American racketeer investigator Henry Petersen claims the Cosa Nostra crime syndicate is allied with the leadership of the Teamsters' Union and the International Longshoremen's Association.

The charge is "slanderous," the Teamsters general vice-president, Frank E. Fitzsimmons, said, demanding that Petersen recant or produce proof of the allegations in court.

Fight Shapes Up On Greek Premier

ATHENS (AP) — King Constantine began looking for a new Greek government today after attempts to bring Andreas Papandreu to trial for treason resulted in the resignation of Premier John Paraskevopoulos.

Because Constantine accepted Paraskevopoulos' resignation immediately Thursday night, it was believed that the king had a successor in mind. Speculation focused on Panyiotis Canelopoulos, head of the rightist National Radical Union, one of Greece's two biggest parties.

Observers expected Canelopoulos to be opposed by the Centre Union, Greece's other major party which is headed by Andreas Papandreu's father, former premier George Papandreu.

The fall of Paraskevopoulos' caretaker government, named last December to prepare for general elections May 28, resulted from attempts to bring Andreas to trial as a leader of the leftist Aspidia secret organization of military officers and an attempt by his father to extend his immunity from prosecution as a member of Parliament.

CHARGE PLOTTING

The Aspidia group is charged with plotting to end the monarchy and make Greece a neutralist, socialist republic. Fifteen officers have been convicted of treason in the case, but Andreas has escaped because members of Parliament are immune from prosecution. His immunity would expire with the dissolution of Parliament before the elections. His father proposed that all such immunities extend until the new Parliament convened.

The Radical Union opposed the idea, and Paraskevopoulos sided with the conservatives. Papandreu then withdrew the Centre Union's support from the government and the premier, needing both major parties for a majority in Parliament, resigned.

Papandreu and King Constantine clashed in the summer of 1965 over the military investigation of Aspidia ordered by the king. Then premier, the elder Papandreu tried to take over the defence ministry, to block the inquiry. Constantine fired him and survived bloody street riots that followed.

Andreas Papandreu, a 47-year-old economist and former American citizen has taken an anti-monarchist and anti-American stand since entering Greek politics in 1964.

2-LANGUAGE TRANSLATION

FREDERICTON (CP) — Two motions concerning the French language were disposed of by the New Brunswick legislature Thursday.

One, by Premier Louis Robichaud, received unanimous approval. It called for a simultaneous French and English translation service in the legislature. The house has 31 Liberal and 21 Progressive Conservative members.

The other, by Opposition Leader J. C. Van Horne, was defeated on straight party lines. It urged official recognition of the French language in New Brunswick.

NORTH VIET STEEL PLANT BOMBARDED

American Losses High in Ground Battle

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troops 271st Regiment, stopped the Viet Cong guerrilla regiment believed protecting a divisional headquarters in a South Vietnamese jungle area called War Zone C.

The Americans fought the Communists for four hours, then pulled into defensive lines for the night under a rain of bullets, rockets and mortar shells.

Two battalions of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division — about 1,400 men — were involved in the battle, five miles from the Cambodian frontier, against a Communist force tentatively identified as the 7th Regiment of the Viet Cong's 8th Division.

In the air war, the U.S. command announced that U.S. Air Force jet aircraft blew out the blast furnaces of North Vietnam's showpiece Thai Nguyen steel plant 37 miles north of Hanoi Thursday.

In savage ground action in the South, the Communists, at first believed to be the 2,500-man dead and 38 wounded. Communist losses were estimated at 28 dead and 50 to 60 other probably killed.

The battle started shortly after a 32-man U.S. reconnaissance platoon pushed into the jungle from a helicopter landing zone.

After the four hours of fighting, continuous American air strikes and artillery shelling, the beleaguered U.S. units set up rough perimeters for the night near the landing zone.

U.S. BOMBERS STRIKE FASTER BY USING BASES IN THAILAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — Basing B-52 bombers in Thailand will permit U.S. military leaders in Vietnam to call on the massive jets for more than one mission a day if need be, defence department sources said today.

The advantage in operating out of Thailand boils down to savings in time, less wear and tear on engines and air crews, savings on tanker planes and—perhaps most important—quick reaction.

"If an American ground unit is in real serious difficulty, or an enemy force is cornered, the B-52s can be called up to hit real fast," said one source.

The first dozen or so B-52s are expected to start operating out of Utapao airfield, south of Bangkok, by mid-April. The round trip from Utapao to targets in South Vietnam will range from two to five hours.

The enemy still was in control of the battlefield.

The battle is another step in the five-week Operation Junction City in War Zone C, centred about 60 miles northwest of Saigon. Elements of the U.S. 4th and 9th Infantry Divisions in the same campaign were in two vicious battles last week which spokesmen said left more than 800 Communist dead.

The raid on North Vietnam's Thai Nguyen steel plant was led by Col. Robin Olds of Washington, who downed 24 enemy planes in the Second World War and a MiG-21 nearly three months ago in the biggest air battle of the Vietnam war.

The Changing Conditions

THE PARLIAMENTARY DEBATE on unification of the Canadian armed forces has brought forth New Democrat queries as to how the unified services system will dovetail with Canada's contingents now on NATO service in Europe.

The question is whether unification can be implemented without a drastic revision of our commitments to NATO defence overseas and to NORAD, the defence system for this continent which we share with the United States.

Mr. Hellyer, in urging his unification plan in parliament, made particular reference to Canada's commitments, not only to NATO and NORAD, but to United Nations peace-keeping and other foreign service.

One of the specified functions of the new Mobile Command, in fact, is to provide a "rotational brigade" for the land forces deployed in Europe. The air division now in Europe, and the infantry, "were not initially affected" by the formation of integrated commands, but the rotation system implies that returning contingents would be integrated into the home commands and not remain separate.

The discussion, however, inevitably raises the whole question of Canada's role in NATO, and the global changes that have occurred since the defensive organization was formed in the dangerous days of 1949. Conditions at that time dictated the necessity of manning the European lines facing the Communist East, with contributions of men and materiel from the NATO members—later to number 15 with the addition of new adherents including West Germany.

The arrangement had two main functions: to provide on-the-spot forces to repel a land invasion from the East, and—for the reassurance of European allies—to guarantee that any engagement of American, British, Canadian or other imported troops would immediately mean the total involvement of the nations concerned.

There is still a theoretical possibility of land aggression from Communist Europe, but many factors tend to make it improbable. The most recent is, of course, the co-operative approach of the Kremlin's new leaders to world affairs and particularly relations with the West. But over-riding such considerations—and they are very important—is the major fact of nuclear armament.

To the United States' early monopoly of the Bomb has now been added Russia's mastery of it, and the capability of both giants in missile delivery systems. The nuclear deterrent, on both sides, has been recognized as the great dissuader and it has brought a completely new environment to global problems. It may be argued, of course, that the West would hesitate to launch nuclear retaliation against a conventional ground attack on, say, West Germany. But there is little likelihood that a direct struggle between the United States and Russia would long remain in the conventional sphere.

The question then is posed: what is the purpose and true function of overseas NATO forces on European soil? And the answer at this juncture must be that they are token forces to reassure European allies and to serve as a deterrent to border clashes which might occur in a moment of tension.

Britain already is restive under the financial strain of maintaining forces on the European continent; the United States is also concerned about the burden of overseas deployments on its annual balance of payments. France has dissociated its forces from the NATO command, although of course they remain on the European scene, and has even ousted the NATO headquarters from French soil. Questions in Canada have not concerned so much the economic burden, since much of the cost of maintenance would obtain at home as well as abroad. But there is a disposition to recognize the new international situation and read in it a greatly reduced need to keep troops in Europe, quite apart from any drain on our foreign exchange.

No doubt the government has given this close study, and the nation should be given an indication of the administration's thinking. Mr. Hellyer may have given a hint in his use of the phrase "not initially affected by the reorganization" when referring to unification and the Canadian formations in Europe. And in this connection it should be noted that the air division has recently been reduced from eight squadrons to six.

But any Canadian action towards a major withdrawal of our forces should be on a unilateral basis. It must be done in consultation with all the NATO members and preferably as part of a general reassessment of the whole NATO defence plan.

It is too early to say that NATO should be disbanded. Much of the improved situation today must be credited to the existence of NATO. But the time is fast approaching, if it is not already here, when the symbol, backed by nuclear strength and the new capability for rapid transport of large numbers of men over long distances, should serve as well as the reality. And a substantial withdrawal could call for an equally hopeful move by the Russians.

'How Many More Must Go Down?'

VANCOUVER CORONER GLEN McDonald says Canada's laws on marine safety were out of date when this country plagiarized them from Britain a century ago. They have remained immune to change since that time.

In the same period sweeping changes in the fishing and tugboat industries have occurred which the British farmers of the existing safety legislation could never have foreseen.

This is the dramatic background he creates for his question to the department of transport: "How many more must go down with their ships before the authorities do something about it?"—and he explains that by how many more, he means how many more than the 28 who lost their lives in British Columbia fishing and tugboat disasters last year.

Several days ago the issue was raised in the House of Commons at Ottawa when Mr. Frank Howard, Skeena, inquired about a recommendation from the Canadian Merchant Service Guild. The guild had asked that steel-hulled tow boats be checked to ensure that they contain three watertight bulkheads placed in such a manner that the flooding of any single compartment would not sink the vessel.

Mr. Pickersgill, the minister of transport, stated the recommendation would be considered at the completion of a study in progress on tow boat sinkings.

The general concern which led to the last investigation into such a disaster is underscored by the remarks of the Vancouver coroner this week. If Mr. McDonald is correct in his assessment of current law, very wide changes are required—and they involve seafaring men whose lives appear to remain in unnecessary jeopardy until improvements are made in safety regulations.

On this coast, as no doubt on the Atlantic, sentiment is strong against unjustified delay. The Vancouver coroner speaks for many others than himself when he raises the cry: "How much longer?"

BILLION DOLLAR QUESTION

How Much Will the Taxpayers Hand Over?

THE taxpayer is the most familiar inhabitant of Canada and yet he remains largely unknown. No one knows precisely what he wants for his money.

No one knows how much he is willing to pay before he rebels against the tax collector. But at last Mr. Sharp, a bold investigator, is going to find out. Along with the provincial treasurers, Mr. Sharp obviously believes that the taxpayer's capacity is not nearly exhausted yet. He can and must pay a lot more than he had ever paid before to support the expanding budgets of the nation and the provinces.

This raises an interesting question which cannot be calculated in figures because it is partly psychological and therefore incalculable. The answer depends not only on the taxpayers' purse but on his mood at any given time. And that is why the outcome of Mr. Sharp's adventure will not be settled by purely mathematical or even rational considerations. It will be settled by politics which are seldom mathematical and never entirely rational.

We shall soon see whether Mr. Sharp is a good judge of the taxpayer's mood. He had better be, since his goal is the prime minister's office and if he is to make a successful prime minister he must prove himself much more than a successful financier.

The gulf between the finance department on Wellington Street across Parliament Hill to the East Block is so wide, indeed, that no man, so far as I can recall, has ever crossed it. Mr. Sharp proposed to cross it while carrying the onerous burden of rising taxes—a daring feat of equilibrium. Or, alternately, he will finance his enormous budgets by the good old method of inflation, the most unjust of all taxes.

There remains another possibility—that the nation's annual income will grow fast enough to finance the budget without extra taxes or inflation but this is a very faint possibility at best since our 11 governments will soon grasp all that extra money and more, as they are going now. The Gross National Product is unlikely to keep pace with the state's unlimited appetite.

It would be unfair, of course, to blame the state for high taxes when they represent only the people's demand for public services. But the electorate is not logical about these things and that is what makes politics so fascinating. The electorate is quite capable of demanding higher expenditures, as it does every day, while rejecting the government that imposes the necessary taxes.

Conservative Chance

In the last few days some leading Conservative politicians have begun to see, rather late, a chance to trip Mr. Sharp on his great leap forward and finally destroy the government. Their preliminary manoeuvres are worth watching for they may well change the whole direction of politics.

Thus Mr. Donald Fleming, a former minister of finance, who was overborne and destroyed by his free-spending colleagues in the Diefenbaker government, suddenly re-emerges from the wilderness to declare: "The greatest fault in our present federal tax system is that the rates are so high." If this be heresy, Mr. Fleming seems to say, make the most of it. While it may not be heresy, it is certainly good Conservatism and the first we have heard of that doctrine in Canada for a long time.

In his counter-revolution Mr. Fleming is accompanied by Senator Walter McCutcheon, another genuine Conservative (a rare breed at the moment) who intends to enter the House of Commons on an extraordinary proposition. He says that government nowadays is suffering from a "lack of discipline, of restraint... a relaxed atmosphere where it is assumed that the taxpayers really don't give a damn" about taxes.

Suggesting Limits

Senator McCutcheon's proposition is truly extraordinary because no ordinary politician has ventured in recent times to suggest that there is any limit to the taxpayer's capacity. The Pearson government acts as if there were no limit. Mr. Diefenbaker, supposedly on the eve of his departure may denounce Mr. Sharp's extravagance but he is always urging more expenditures and with unconscious humor, denouncing inflation. The NDP, with a higher morality, regards any limit on spending as only the cynical propaganda of Big Business, though most taxes must come from the middle and lower income groups who earn most of the income.

What are we to make of all this confusion? It means, I think, that the real Conservatives of Canada have decided to undertake a perilous experiment and risk everything on the assumption that the taxpayers as a whole cannot be pushed much further, that there are votes to be won, after all, on a program of economy. But it is too early to say that this political judgment is correct, or even that the Flemings and McCutcheons can rescue their party

Attention Mr. Diogenes

I would like to express my thanks to the unknown person who so kindly returned my wallet, lost on the V.I. Coach Lines bus—Frank Smith, 10859 Madrona, R.R. 1, Sidney.

Appreciation

The Association of Women Electors would like to express their thanks and appreciation to all organizations and individuals who responded so enthusiastically to our appeal for volunteers in conducting our recent telephone campaign.

Through the Rain

In your March 17 edition of the Times, in an article about the Easter Sunrise Service, you stated that the 6 a.m. service put on by the Victoria Kairos was rained out and held in Metropolitan United Church. This is not true. The one-half hour service was started promptly at 6 a.m. on Mount Douglas as scheduled with 46 people present. After the service, a pancake breakfast was held at Metropolitan United. I know as I was there. — Stuart Stark, 1532 Prospect Place.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

from the non-Conservatives who now control it.

The real calculations of the Pearson government (as distinguished from its speeches and soothing syrup) are precisely the opposite. The government risks its future on the assumption that the electorate wants more spending and will tolerate more taxes, either directly or indirectly in the form of inflation, or both. It does not fear the real Conservatives. It fears the NDP and to stop the NDP it is systematically purloining the NDP's policies, just as the old master, Mackenzie King, stole and enforced the earlier policies of the CCF.

Given the social temper of our times, given the clear need of prodigious spending for public services more essential than private luxuries, and given also the demoralization of the Conservative party, the government's political calculations may be accurate. They could be honest, too, if the need of higher taxes were candidly admitted.

Unknown Factor

But there is an unknown factor in the equation and it will settle everything in the end—how much of his income will the taxpayer willingly hand over to the state? No one can know the answer because the taxpayer himself does not know in advance when his mood is as changeable as April weather. Besides, it may be several years before he has a chance to make his decision known at the polls.

It is a pretty reckless politician, however, who imagines that the taxpayer, after digesting a current budgetary meal far more costly than he yet realizes will then be ready to order a still larger one. At the edge of his great leap in the dark, is Mr. Sharp actually that reckless?

FROM TUY PHUOC, VIETNAM

Disintegration of the VC Infrastructure

THIS small corner of Binh Dinh province, which holds more population than many highland provinces, also holds the beginning of an answer to one of the truly basic questions about the Vietnamese war.

The question is: What happens to the local Viet Cong political-military infrastructure when the VC and North Vietnamese big units have been defeated and driven off?

In the battle for Binh Dinh, this happened so long ago herabouts that I came to Tuy Phuoc last September, at election time, to ask the same question.

In those days, the local U.S. military advisors were decidedly reluctant to undertake the short daylight drive from the province capital to Tuy Phuoc. But even then the tough little district chief, Captain Pham Xia Tung, gave an answer that offered much hope for the future.

Today, in contrast, Captain Tung is not merely hopeful; he is instead serenely confident—and as a former mathematics professor in one of the local French lycées he is by no means given to military braggadocio. Moreover, the facts, confirmed by the able Americans who work with Captain Tung, very strongly support his confidence.

Pacification

Six months ago, he had taken in hand only about half his district, and the rich Go Boy area was the chief haunt of the local VC. Today, Go Boy is in hand again, with thousands of refugees pouring back to work their land. And within the district's borders, the VC still lurk in only four of Captain Tung's 118 hamlets. Pacification, it should be understood, always spreads outwards from the district town. Thus the fringe hamlets, where the districts join, are the natural refuges of the guerrillas and political cadres of the Viet Cong.

What matters now, rather, is the fact that the VC have been driven out of many, many scores of other hamlets that they used to hold in an iron grip. And just as important is the further fact that these groups of VC in exile are rather swiftly eroding away.

Six months ago, Tuy Phuoc was threatened by a force of 80 regular soldiers from the provincial battalion, plus the best part of a district company. Today, death, defection and desertion have eroded this force to no more than 25 regular soldiers, two under-strength platoons of the old district company and about 225 guerrillas.

More than half the force has gone in only half a year, and to no purpose. Since New Year's Day, revolutionary development teams have been three times subjected to petty attack and local self-defence forces have been attacked or harassed much more often. One revolutionary development cadre has been killed, and a few members of the self-defence forces have also been lost. But they have always stood their ground and have given better than they got.

There has also been one highly instructive assassination attempt, against Chief Vinh of Kim Dong hamlet. The local self-defence force rallied to the hamlet chief's defence, and the VC assassination squad was quickly repulsed. Whereupon Chief Vinh tracked them to one of their riverside caves, which are like muskrat holes with underwater entrances. Plunging in, he popped up in the cave mouth, threw a grenade and dived out again. All six VC squad members were killed.

Better still, the end of all this is rather clearly in sight. Daily, the defectors continue to come in to the local "Chiu Hoi" centre from the VC refuge areas. There were eight yesterday. One was the former favorite messenger of Captain Tung's late opposite number, the VC district chief who was cornered and killed some months ago. Another was a really important political cadre, Nguyen Chi Cong, who had been both a VC hamlet chief and village chairman of the National Liberation Front.

I asked Cong, a somber, intelligent older man, what would happen to the VC still remaining in the refuge areas a few months hence, when Tuy Phuoc and its three neighbor-districts should have completed the pacification of their fringe hamlets. He laughed a bit grimly and replied:

"They will either follow me to the Chiu Hoi camp; or they will die; or they will flee to the western hills (beyond the rice plain) where they will starve."

No Easy Job Ahead

None of this means that the job ahead in Tuy Phuoc will be easy or simple. For example, the Viet Cong high command still disposes of the hard core of the Communist hard core—the local leaders so important that their VC role was always covert. These people are now being sent back into the villages and hamlets; and it is a long, slow job to identify them and track them down as they reveal themselves.

Again, what is happening in Tuy Phuoc and its neighbor-districts in this rice plain does not necessarily predict what will happen to rice plains further to the north or south. But it does mean that in this still-unique area, where the local VC infrastructure has been wholly deprived of support from the enemy's big units, the infrastructure has been disintegrating at a most encouraging rate—far more rapidly, indeed, than anyone had hoped.

Are Canadians Being 'Conditioned' To Accept Vietnam War's Cruelty?

Consciences Are Tested To the Point of Protest

By MAXWELL COHEN

The time is at hand for some major Canadian re-evaluation on Vietnam.

Up to now ours has been a policy that reflects many and varied pressures on decision-making. Our general involvement with the United States and our sympathy for her world role tends to inhibit undue criticism, particularly when she is in distress.

At the same time our position on the International Control Commission since 1954 has given us access to information and perspectives and has placed us in the unenviable role of being both "neutral" and partisan, all with the result of forcing us to adopt multiple images consistent with these varied stances.

But if government in Canada has been influenced in its range of choices because of so many inhibiting factors, public opinion has been moving increasingly toward deeply searching the national conscience.

Never before have ordinary people had the chance to witness daily, through the medium of TV, the inevitable violence and cruelty of jungle warfare. They see small-boned peasants come out of destroyed villages or foxholes as Western might sprays the countryside with a versatile arsenal from insecticides to napalm, from traditional cannon to helicopters and bombs.

Such a visual education on the doorstep of every home is bound to "condition" over a period of time. For many Canadians the effect must be to cause a sense of pained wonder at white and Western power exercised so many thousands of miles away: at the same time a subtle hardening of our own capacity to witness suffering may be altering our standards of conscience.

Taint of Silence

Indeed, there is probably a growing suspicion that unless Canadians and others can somehow disassociate themselves from this daily witness to man's inhumanity they are likely to be tainted by the complicity of silence.

This would be the second great traumatic experience with conscience in our time. For while it would be monstrous to compare Hitler's extermination policies with events in Vietnam there is no doubt that human society suffered an immense blow to its humane self-image by its discovery of what went on in the death camps. It has not recovered from this trauma and it may take many decades to do so.

To now have a different level of human violence presented to it, in dramatic and electronic images invading the privacy of a million homes, is another experience which again tests conscience to the point of protest.

Moreover, it is not only this distant violence brought into the home as an instant reality, it is the admixture of these events with the universal problem of color that adds an even more severe dimension of strain at a time when white, affluent and liberal societies are attempting to discover the nature of their duties to non-white fellow-men.

The instincts of many Canadians cry out, therefore, for some kind of decision that would separate us from the taint of these events; yet we are caught by our own record in a serious predicament.

That predicament flows from the simple fact that we have been members of the International Control Commission from 1954 onwards and we were party to an immense amount of private information which did not seem to become a basis for either an independent Canadian policy or for an improved level of public knowledge. For there is no doubt that among the intrinsic difficulties of Vietnam, for any responsible person, is the absence of detailed knowledge about the total social setting within which these tragic events have been escalating for so long up to their present level of regional and, perhaps, global menace.

All the complexity that was involved in the struggles between the Indo-Chinese and the French, between Catholic minority and Buddhist, between peasant and townsman, between northerners and southerners, between the Indo-Chinese people in general and their Chinese neighbors—all of this social and historical framework generally is denied to us by way of detailed understanding to say nothing of relating it to the specific events of today.

Not Informed

Indeed, the weakness of the Canadian position is that we were in fact party to much information after 1954 and until 1962 when President Kennedy made some of the major decisions which led to converting the United States role from an advisory one to full-scale military operation. Yet Canadian public opinion was never well informed by its leaders in all of those years as to what our ICC representatives were saying.

Moreover, such of their reports as have been published in recent years tend to be in general quite favorable to the U.S. interpretation of northern infiltration and aggression, so that one wonders about the depth of awareness on the part of some of the foreign service officers and soldiers who were posted to that thankless assignment.

Late in Day

It is true, of course, that by 1963 when the American commitment to direct involvement became overwhelming and the decision to escalate in order to achieve a military success was taken by President Johnson, either explicitly or implicitly, we already were making protests about bombing in the north through, for example, Mr. Pearson's singular address at Johns Hopkins. But that useful gesture was quite late in the day considering our special knowledge and our role on the ICC since 1954 which would have justified a more vigorous approach to a policy of independence and even "neutrality."

Is it too late for an authentically Canadian line on Vietnam? Does public opinion begin to have the information to which it is entitled?

This little boy's village in South Vietnam was wiped out by American bombers last month. Soldiers found him wandering among the ruins where 95 civilians died and some 200 were injured. He was naked and the soldiers gave him some oversized boots and draped him in an army shirt. His village was Lang Vei.

Is the government prepared for the kind of national searching of conscience that not only balances interests but takes risks with that immense network of dealings that marks our basic neighborhood with the United States?

Those risks should not be minimized for President Johnson can be bitter about "friends" who do not stand with him in his moments of political truth.

Nevertheless, ought we not to attempt at least the following (to some of which Mr. Pearson and Mr. Martin already seem deeply committed)?

1. Categorically disassociate ourselves from the bombing of North Vietnam which increasingly has eroded the U.S. position as a country supporting the rule of law in international affairs.

2. With equal firmness we must disassociate ourselves from village destruction which is now so standard a practice in eliminating so-called sources of Viet Cong support.

3. We must not discourage Canadian law contacts with North Vietnam or the National Liberation Front.

4. As a friend of the United States, we must begin to speak about de-escalation, urging upon her a point of view that does not assume the indefinite enlargement of her commitments or the need of a military "victory."

People's Organization (SWAPO).

Armed with modern weapons and well-trained the SWAPO force killed the first white South African ever to die in his home at the hands of insurgent guerrillas. The army and the police were quickly rushed up to Ovamboland to pursue the armed guerrillas who had avoided arrest; 56 were captured and taken to prison in South Africa under the law for preventive detention without trial. But the majority appear to have evaded capture.

Special Patrol

General J. M. Keever, South Africa's police chief, disclosed that the Republic had established a special anti-guerrilla unit to patrol the frontiers of South Africa and South-West Africa.

It must be known to the authorities that although a small band of armed guerrillas succeeded in penetrating into Ovamboland (comprising Ovamboland, Bechuanaland and Angola), they carried out secret training inside Ovamboland for more than a year before they struck. Police intelligence had failed to discover them.

Since fighting by rebels had recently also spread into the southern frontier of Angola, adjoining Ovamboland, the question of security has obviously become a major element in South Africa's thinking.

From their point of view it would be immensely useful if they could enlist the active support of the Ovambo traditional chiefs to help fight the guerrillas. By offering them greater control over their own affairs, together with a substantial economic investment for development, the authorities might hope to enlist the chiefs in helping to suppress the whole guerrilla movement.

Mackenzie King-Hitler Stories Won't Go Away

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University. Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University.)

For over a year now Canadians have had at least fragmentary information on Mackenzie King's warm feelings towards Adolf Hitler and his deep interest in, and to some extent, admiration for Nazi institutions. They have had the information. But they really haven't known what to make of it or what to do with it.

Some stories appeared in the French language press, plus a few references in the English language press. The attitude of people who are familiar with the few details which have been made public by the literary executors of Mr. King seems to be that they wish it would go away along with Mr. King's spiritualism.

But it won't go away and it shouldn't be allowed to go away. Mackenzie King is too important to an understanding of Canadian Liberalism. You cannot understand modern Canada without understanding this extraordinary creation known as Canadian Liberalism, and you simply cannot understand Liberalism without Mackenzie King.

The Liberal party in Canada differs in a very fundamental way from the Democratic party in the United States. The Democratic party is the political home of labor. The Liberal party is not.

While it is in the tradition of Mackenzie King it cannot become the political home of labor. King, the labor authority, could never come to accept organized labor. This is the key to understanding his book "Industry and Humanity." This explains why Canada did not have a labor statute until 1948 containing features the Americans enacted into law with Herbert Hoover as president. And it is probably the key to Mr. King's attitude to Hitler.

After the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia at Munich and when the occupation of Prague was only weeks away, Mackenzie King wrote to the Nazi dictator recommending to him the path of peace and progress and urging him "to hold firm to the resolve not to let anything imperil or destroy what you have already accomplished, particularly for those whose lives are lived in humble circumstances. If you should not think it too presumptuous on my part, I should like even more to say how much I hope that you will think not only of the good you can do for those in your own country, but that you will remember, as well, the good that you can do to the entire world."

Hitler also thought he could do a lot of good to the entire world although he went at it a little differently from the way King had in mind. But, subsequent acts of King showed that he did not rule out the expansion of German boundaries, and in 1933 when this letter was written the nature of Nazi institutions was perfectly clear to all mankind.

There are many King references to the "humble" folk. It was a King synonym for labor. But labor without organization; labor without unions. King believed in company unions, and it appears quite likely that this fervent belief in unfree labor was what drew him to Nazism.

In the summer of 1933, Hitler invited Mackenzie King to send a delegation of Canadian scholars and "officers" to Germany for the purpose of studying Nazi institutions. King accepted immediately and told the Germans that he would himself be a member of the delegation. However, he was planning an election in the autumn of 1933 and so the junket would be kept under his hat until he was safely back in office with a new mandate.

As Hitler moved against Poland as he had long planned, the Canadian election was off and the travelling study group was off. James Eayrs says in his "In Defence of Canada: Apprehension and Re-orientation": "Had Mackenzie King set out with the party as planned, the Prime Minister of Canada, together with a dozen leading Canadians (not to mention innumerable scholars and officers) might have spent the war in an internment camp." No doubt many a Tory and many an old sweat will have wistful thoughts over that.

If you go back further, to King's visit to Hitler in 1937, you find the same obsession by Mackenzie King with Hitler's labor policy. King wrote in his memorandum on that visit with Hitler: "I spoke of what I had seen and learned of the chancellor's effort to improve the conditions of the working classes and those in humble circumstances; (1) told him of my own interest in these questions as one who had organized the Department of Labor in Canada, and had been minister of labor some years ago. I said all that constructive side of his work has appealed very strongly to me."

By 1937 there were dozens of books available in which the destruction of labor unions by Robert Ley and the Nazis was described in authentic detail. By 1939 there were scores of them. King knew what he was talking about. He knew what he wanted to study.

It would be extremely difficult to try to sustain any more generalized an interpretation of what King had in mind. For example, if one were to suggest that King didn't believe in freedom and free institutions generally it would be difficult to support it. But King's whole life bespeaks his distaste for legitimate unions.

Mackenzie King was a Kafka-like character, out of focus with the world. From industry and humanity to the silly piles of rocks he stashed away at Kingsmere, each act seems to be allegory and each crisis seems to be insoluble. At Kingsmere he thought of Berchtesgaden and another lonely bachelor.

And so great is his imprint upon his successors, so limited are they by the confines of the traditions he bequeathed, they do not even realize they should be forever lamenting the fact Mr. King was not thinking instead of Senator Wagner and Secretary Perkins — the architects of the Democratic party-labor entente.

There are many King references to the "humble" folk. It was a King synonym for labor. But labor without organization; labor without unions. King believed in company unions, and it appears quite likely that this fervent belief in unfree labor was what drew him to Nazism.

In the summer of 1933, Hitler invited Mackenzie King to send a delegation of Canadian scholars and "officers" to Germany for the purpose of studying Nazi institutions. King accepted immediately and told the Germans that he would himself be a member of the delegation. However, he was planning an election in the autumn of 1933 and so the junket would be kept under his hat until he was safely back in office with a new mandate.

As Hitler moved against Poland as he had long planned, the Canadian election was off and the travelling study group was off. James Eayrs says in his "In Defence of Canada: Apprehension and Re-orientation": "Had Mackenzie King set out with the party as planned, the Prime Minister of Canada, together with a dozen leading Canadians (not to mention innumerable scholars and officers) might have spent the war in an internment camp." No doubt many a Tory and many an old sweat will have wistful thoughts over that.

If you go back further, to King's visit to Hitler in 1937, you find the same obsession by Mackenzie King with Hitler's labor policy. King wrote in his memorandum on that visit with Hitler: "I spoke of what I had seen and learned of the chancellor's effort to improve the conditions of the working classes and those in humble circumstances; (1) told him of my own interest in these questions as one who had organized the Department of Labor in Canada, and had been minister of labor some years ago. I said all that constructive side of his work has appealed very strongly to me."

By 1937 there were dozens of books available in which the destruction of labor unions by Robert Ley and the Nazis was described in authentic detail. By 1939 there were scores of them. King knew what he was talking about. He knew what he wanted to study.

It would be extremely difficult to try to sustain any more generalized an interpretation of what King had in mind. For example, if one were to suggest that King didn't believe in freedom and free institutions generally it would be difficult to support it. But King's whole life bespeaks his distaste for legitimate unions.

Mackenzie King was a Kafka-like character, out of focus with the world. From industry and humanity to the silly piles of rocks he stashed away at Kingsmere, each act seems to be allegory and each crisis seems to be insoluble. At Kingsmere he thought of Berchtesgaden and another lonely bachelor.

And so great is his imprint upon his successors, so limited are they by the confines of the traditions he bequeathed, they do not even realize they should be forever lamenting the fact Mr. King was not thinking instead of Senator Wagner and Secretary Perkins — the architects of the Democratic party-labor entente.

U Thant's Office Won't Accept South Africa's Ovamboland Plan

By COLIN LEGUM

LONDON—The United Nations Secretary-General's office acted promptly in repudiating South Africa's proposal to create an autonomous state for the Ovambo peoples of South-West Africa.

This repudiation is in defence of the decision taken last December by the General Assembly ending South Africa's 45-year-old mandate over the vast, hilly, rich, but sparsely populated territory which stretches along the Atlantic coast between South Africa and Portuguese Angola. It was once a German colony.

A special committee of the UN is presently engaged in formulating proposals for implementing the decision to terminate the mandate over South-West Africa.

Won't Obey UN

One of the reasons South Africa chose this moment to make its proposal to the Ovambos—in the form of an offer of "self-determination"—is to re-establish its initiative in this conflict with the world body. By demonstrating its determination to rule the 500,000 people of South-West Africa it intends to show the UN that South Africa has not the slightest intention of obeying the General Assembly's decision.

But Mr. Balthazar Vorster's government has not been satisfied with a simple act of defiance. By making the offer in the terms in which he has chosen he hopes to be able to persuade, at least the Western countries, that South Africa is making a gesture of compromise in the direction of self-determination.

How genuine is this offer? First, it is not a new one. When the South-West Africa case was being heard by the International Court at The Hague in 1963-1966, the government-appointed Odendaal Commission produced a report on the future of the mandated territory in which it proposed that autonomous states—along the lines of the Bantustans in the Transkei—should be created for each of the ethnic groups in South-West Africa.

This would involve creating a host of small territories. The largest would be for the Ovambos who number about 230,000 people. They live a largely tribal life along the frontier of Angola in good farming country, but under conditions of great poverty alleviated only by the money brought back by migrant workers.

... offer not new

The wealthiest state would belong to the 70,000 Whites (mainly Afrikaners and Germans) who occupy the bulk of all the land and control the important diamond and copper mineral resources.

The smaller states would be formed by the 50,000 Hereros, 40,000 Namas (Hottentots), 35,000 Berg Damaras, and about 15,000 Coloureds.

Although the latest South African offer holds out the promise of ultimate independence as part of the offer of self-determination, this does not amount to anything serious—except perhaps in so far as the white group would be concerned, since none of the others would be economically viable as separate units. Nor are the Africans in the territory likely to consider the offer of eventual independence very seriously since they will remember that when the late Dr. Verwoerd originated his idea for the Bantustans in South Africa he coupled it with an offer of ultimate independence, and his colleagues have long since repudiated this idea. In fact, the powers conceded to Bantustans (under self-determination) amount to little more than control over local government and community affairs. All real power remains in the hands of the South African Parliament which, of course, is exclusively white.

Only One Tribe

Another question that will be asked is why the offer has been confined in the first place to the Ovambos alone? It can be argued that they are the largest of the ethnic groups (numbering slightly over half the total). If, therefore, a Bantustan is to be established as a pilot it could be created only in Ovamboland.

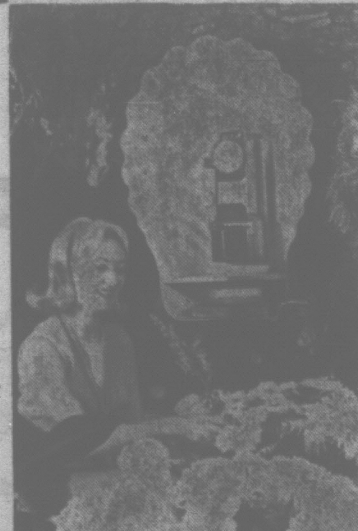

But there is another important reason for the South African government's wish to create a Bantustan in Ovamboland. Towards the end of last year an underground guerrilla force began to operate in Ovamboland, led by the South-West African

A POTLATCH cocktail party sounds like a novel blend of two cultures, and this is what Duncan Dogwood Chapter, IOOE, are putting on Saturday night in the Crystal Room of the Tzouhalem Hotel. This invitational affair is to raise funds to further the project of furnishing the play therapy area at the new $4,000,000 Cowichan District Hospital. Ready for the party are Mrs. John Cummings and Mrs. Richard White, in traditional Indian costume, and Mrs. Kurt Horn, who will be at the Hudson's Bay Trading Post.

FIELD HOUSE MAY GET NOD

DUNCAN—A field house at Wharfedale Park is to be the city's centennial project after all.

This was the almost certain outcome of a special in-camera meeting Wednesday of council and the recreation commission.

Mayor Jack Dobson said after the meeting council will reconsider building a field house.

The joint meeting agreed on a building to cost approximately $12,000 to $15,000.

Council had previously rejected an architect's plan for a $80,000 field house and also his revisions which trimmed the cost to $30,000.

Ready, Waiting For New Arena

DUNCAN — A year in advance of having an arena this district has formed a minor hockey association.

The North Cowichan municipality centennial arena project at Fullers Lake, Chemainus, is not expected to open until Jan. 1 next year.

But Earl Morris could not curb his enthusiasm that long.

The Ontario expatriate has the hockey bug.

He played hockey as a youngster, has a house full of trophies to prove his ability as a minor hockey coach, and a 15-year-old son who just loves to play.

He came to Duncan as a B.C. Hydro lineman eight months ago.

When winter rolled around his first thoughts were for hockey.

With no fanfare of publicity he just spread the word he was going to have a hockey training session at the old Duncan skating arena.

The Sunday morning in question, 130 boys turned up.

Duncan's arena is fine for curling and figure skating classes but the pillars make hockey too hazardous.

Earl Morris confines his Sunday morning sessions to skating and training — but the boys' enthusiasm is still running high.

He says: "When we started off half of them couldn't skate backward but they certainly have the desire."

"If we can keep all the boys of the district working together they'll certainly be a competitive bunch."

The hockey sessions have been going for 10 weeks now, and Mr. Morris decided it was time to form a hockey association.

Along with Fred Fidler and Stan Halloran of Duncan he has set up the Cowichan Valley Minor Hockey Association and affiliated it to the B.C. Minor Hockey Association.

Mr. Morris says: "We hope to put full teams into regular play as soon as we get into the new rink."

He doesn't favor the idea of each town in a district giving its name to a team.

"It's not good for the boys," he said.

The teams will all operate within one organization.

A special meeting has been called at Crofton Community Centre on Tuesday evening, April 18.

Messrs. Morris, Fidler and Halloran will stand down as interim officials and there will be a proper election of office-bearers.

Earl Morris, Jr. and Rina Jellera of Chemainus are the only two boys from this district currently playing regular minor hockey. They travel to Nanaimo for their games.

Both boys help in the Sunday morning training sessions at Duncan.

Boys come from Mesachie Lake, Youbou, Cobble Hill, Crofton and Chemainus to the sessions.

Mr. Morris says: "We will be able to have two teams ready to put on the ice for the Jan. 1 opening."

Warhead Cloud Disappears Into 'Care Less' Attitude

By TERRY IZZARD

It's Alright With Me Jack.

Or.

How I Learned to Love the Bomb. For more than a year now the people of Comox have been sitting on nuclear warheads with enough destructive power to wipe Western Canada off the map.

When the United States-owned warheads first arrived there was an outburst of indignation from ban-the-bombers and a number of locals.

However, it blew over in a short while and the bombs could just as well be liquorice sticks for all the interest shown in them these days.

But what do people really think about them?

Apparently nothing.

Said cigar-smoking village chairman Ron Ellis, 45: "The bombs? Oh, I don't think anyone ever thinks about them."

"It was mostly people from the outside who objected."

"We've accepted it. Former RCAF officer, Alvin Mitchell, admitted: "I couldn't care less and I live right beside the base."

"No one around here ever talks about it. There was a bit of discussion when those boys came and sat down in protest. We felt sorry for them."

"But there's nothing to worry about. They're safer than ordinary bombs."

Said his wife Frances: "They're very safe. From what I've heard there's no chance of them going off accidentally."

She admitted though: "I think they're unnecessary. But I guess it's alright."

A young airman laughed openly when asked if he was worried by the bombs' presence.

"I don't give a damn," he said. "We're probably all going to be blown up anyway so what's it matter. No one's interested in Comox."

Apparently not.

In neighboring Courtenay, city administrator Bill Moore admitted: "No one ever talks about the warheads. I don't think anyone cares either way."

CHAIRMAN RON ELLIS
... "we've accepted it"

"Like a lot of other things in life you just learn to accept it."

"We don't have much choice anyway. This area depends to a great extent on the air base for its economy."

The general feeling was summed up by an old lady whose only reaction to the question was: "Bombs? What bombs?"

ISLAND ROUNDUP

1,000 Workers Return to Job

GOLD RIVER — More than 1,000 construction workers who staged a one-day walkout Thursday at the Gold River pulp mill project returned to their jobs today.

The walkout followed the strike of electricians at the camp Wednesday when Canadian Comstock Ltd. ordered Plumbers and Pipefitters' Union members to install several electrical instrument panels.

Electricians then formed a picket line at the Tahsis Company job, claiming the plumbers were doing work which should have been done by the electricians. Workers in other trades refused to cross in the line and work was halted.

Union officials flew to Vancouver to straighten out difficulties, and an agreement assigning suitable sections of the installation work to each group was worked out.

For $5, residents in the Langford area will be covered for emergency ambulance trips for a year.

The pay-in-advance plan has been devised in a bid to raise $12,000 to buy a new ambulance. Ambulance men and Colwood volunteer firemen have so far collected $3,800 in a canvas of area businessmen.

Average cost of an emergency trip is $15 said Langford fire chief Alan LeQueene.

Area covered by the ambulance extends from the Sooke border and includes View Royal, Colwood and Metchesia.

FULFORD — Almost $200 was raised towards a new entrance for Fulford community hall as result of a sea food smorgasbord and bingo game this week.

The new entrance is a south Salt Spring Island centennial project.

A committee has been formed in Sooke to study the feasibility of installing street lights from Sooke River bridge to Maple Avenue.

Cost of the project would be $1,080, or about one-third of a mill.

At the annual meeting of the fire protection district it was also reported that the West Coast ambulance had answered 76 calls during 1966 — seven fewer than the previous year.

On the fire front, a record number of firemen volunteers were reported by chief Raymond Pimlott. A record 3,200 man hours were put in at practice sessions during the year.

At the same time, the department attended nine fires for a total of 1,460 man hours.

DUNCAN — Dan Campbell, municipal affairs minister has been invited by Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce to address a public meeting here on the issue of regional districts.

The sponsoring Duncan chamber has suggested a date in early May but left it up to Mr. Campbell.

J. Everett Brown, deputy minister of municipal affairs, is speaking on regional districts today at Chemainus Chamber of Commerce.

Day Is Night, Spring, Autumn When Four Nations Use Phone

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—What's it like to listen in on a telephone conversation linking London, Ottawa, Melbourne and Kuala Lumpur?

It's fun, but it's also confusing. Day is night, Spring is autumn. And Ashyuh becomes Ayesia.

Such was the conversation carried this week at the official opening of a 23,000-mile telephone cable linking Britain and Canada with Australia, New Zealand, Singapore, Malaysia, and Hong Kong.

It is a $250,000,000 project entirely designed, built and paid for by Commonwealth countries.

Including cotton tape wrapping the cable manufactured in Beaconsfield, Que.

The Queen opened the cable with a recorded address from London after the Royal Austrian Navy eastern area band played the Royal Anthem in Melbourne.

Her well-rounded 'best wishes to you all,' in the best of the Queen's English, was followed by John McEwen, acting prime minister of Australia, whose accent marked the breadth of the globe with his references to 'Ayesia,' 'Austrayelia,' and 'to-daye.'

Then Tunku Abdul Rahman, prime minister of Malaysia, came on the line with his soft Asian voice with overtones of an English school training. Followed by the more Oriental lilt of Toh Chin Chye, acting prime minister of Singapore.

Trade Minister Winters, acting prime minister of Canada for the occasion, lent his Lunenburg, N.S., accent to the occasion to thank the other leaders for their good wishes on Canada's centennial and invite them all to Expo 67.

He noted the Peace Tower clock was striking midnight here while the Australian Band played its mid-afternoon fanfare and Herbert Bowden, British Commonwealth secretary, spoke at 5 a.m. from his home in Surrey, England.

Mr. Winters thought it surprising that there was little more than a fifth of a second lag in time between a person's voice going into a telephone in Surrey and emerging from an ear-piece in Kuala Lumpur.

"We live in a global village," he said.

Smack In Face With a Pie

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—Mack Sennett would have loved it.

A girl got smacked in the face with a blueberry pie, two boys were arrested and one of them, Joseph Vitale, 19, got a cleaning bill today from the judge.

Police gave this account of the Tuesday ruckus:

A 19-year-old Watertown girl began laughing when Vitale, of Cambridge, narrowly missed being struck by a bus.

Vitale didn't think it was funny. He went to a local bakery, purchased a pie, and returned to the foyer of the Harvard Co-Op where the girl was still standing.

Witnesses said Vitale then hit the girl in the face with the pie, sending berries streaking down her dress.

An indignant onlooker, Gary Goette, 18, came to the girl's rescue. Police broke up the battle.

Goyette pleaded guilty in district court to disturbing the peace and participating in an affray. Vitale pleaded guilty to charges of disturbing the peace, participating in an affray and assault and battery.

The case was continued to April 3.

Judge Edward Viola also ordered Vitale to reimburse the girl for a cleaning bill.

YES, HE SAYS

Can Guilty Feelings Produce Sore Throat?

NEW YORK (AP)—Can problems of living in the 1960s really cause an acute surgical emergency such as a perforated duodenal ulcer?

Can guilt feelings produce sore throats?

Can wants be removed by psychotherapy?

Dr. Heinz E. Lehmann, professor of psychiatry at McGill University, Montreal, posed these questions this week at a symposium on the emotional basis of illness. He then presented samplings of controlled research studies that added up to "yes" to all his questions.

"In view of the mounting evidence inside and outside the laboratory, it is difficult to dispute that there are demonstrable links between human emotions and physiological illness," Lehmann said.

One experiment he cited demonstrated that when a woman's dependency wishes were inhibited from expression because of feelings of shame or guilt her streptococcal counts in throat cultures were high. When the woman was trying to resolve her conflicts realistically and found herself a more worthwhile person, the bacterial count was significantly lower.

Political Views Bring Trial For Journalist

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters)—The Brazilian government Thursday requested criminal proceedings against the outspoken editor of an evening newspaper for alleged anti-government campaigning.

Justice Minister Gama e Silva asked federal police to begin proceedings against Helio Fernandes, editor of the newspaper Tribuna da Imprensa, for allegedly engaging in political activity when he was banned from doing so.

Fernandes was stripped of his political rights by ex-president Humberto Castello Branco in November and banned from writing political articles in the press.

But when President Arthur da Costa e Silva was installed as Castello Branco's successor on March 15, Fernandes signed his name to a political column criticizing the outgoing government and showing little enthusiasm over the new one.

Teachers Score Salary Scale

VANCOUVER (CP)—Teachers in B.C. say district superintendents of schools should receive higher salaries that fit the responsibilities of the position.

Crown Reserve
On Coal AreaBy AL KENT
Business Editor

A move designed to discourage coalfield "nuisance staking" by promoters and speculators was taken by the B.C. cabinet this week.

The action was in placing a crown reserve on a coal area known as the Groundhog coal basin about 80 miles northeast of Stewart covering some 5,500 square miles between the headwaters of the Skeena and Nass River.

The minister of mines and petroleum resources was given authority to advertise for interested parties to make proposals on or before May 15 for the exploration and development of fields in accordance with the Coal Act.

Groundhog is a wild and inaccessible area and may hold no coal of commercial value.

At any rate, it will cost a prospective developer a great deal of money even to establish whether there is sufficient coal to be concerned about.

And provided the minister of mines is agreeable, it will also cost a licensee up to $150,000 just to have the privilege of finding out the prospects.

Terms of the order in council include putting up first of all a $50,000 cash or parity bond performance bond.

Then a licensee must agree to spend $150,000 in exploration and development over a three-year period.

If he spends $75,000 in the first year and decides not to proceed, he may have his $50,000 bond back.

He also may recover his bond if he spends $150,000 before expiration of three years.

If satisfied that a firm proposal can be made the licensee will submit development plans to the minister, again putting up a performance bond.

In accordance with other coal development stipulations imposed by the government in recent months, there is a provision for the minister to require, on six months' notice, that up to half the coal output be sold for use in B.C.

Mines Minister Donald Brothers said this is a protection for a B.C. steel industry, should it ever be developed. It would assure a supply of coal for coking purposes—provided that coking properties are inherent without which coke might have to be imported to the province.

So far, just one company has expressed interest in Groundhog basin, Coastal Coal Co. Ltd., of Vancouver; which this year was granted a one-year permit to develop 27 coal licenses in the vicinity of Groundhog.

But similar stipulations were held out when a crown reserve was placed on coal lands in Hasler Creek coal basin, in the Peace region, about a year ago.

"What we are trying to do, basically, is to discourage promoters and speculators coming in and wanting to stake claims helter-skelter," Mr. Brothers said.

"We don't want them to hold property for years without developing it. This way we avoid nuisance staking," the minister said.

Offshore lumber shipments from B.C. during February greatly exceeded shipments for the same month a year ago, and helped the two-month figure for 1967 beat the first two months of last year by more than 75 million board feet.

Waterborne lumber shipments last month totalled 204.5 million board feet, compared with 185.7 million feet during February 1966.

For January and February the figure stands at 430.5 million board feet, against 355.3 million feet in the first two months of last year.

Shipments to the U.S. Atlantic seaboard rose from 73.8 million board feet to 95.7 million feet last month, while in the two months the amount went from 158.9 million feet to 207.3 million feet.

Shipments to California declined from 1.9 million board feet to 535,724 board feet in February, again compared with a year ago.

But this may be attributed to the fact that no shipments were made to California in the first month of this year. The two-month total last year was 6.3 million feet.

The United Kingdom took 900,000 board feet more last month than in the same period last year, for a total 37.9 million feet. The two-month total rose from 69.4 to 80.5 million feet.

Union sources said the company's latest offer was rejected unanimously by the approximately 700 local union delegates meeting here.

Trucking Employers, Inc., the industry's national bargaining organization, announced it rejected the union's demands.

Truckers now earn $3.32 to $5 an hour.

Although strike votes will be taken Saturday and Sunday by all affected local unions, the Teamsters are reported not to be planning a country-wide strike if no contract is reached.

Union officials have said repeatedly any strike would be "selective," starting with a number of major companies.

A strike could begin Monday.

Teamsters
On Weekend

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters Union ordered Thursday a country-wide strike vote this weekend in deadlocked contract talks for some 500,000 workers in the U.S. trucking industry.

The action came after union negotiators spurned a reported three-year, 37-cent wage offer from industry negotiators representing some 17,000 trucking companies.

The union has come down in bargaining to what it calls a basic minimum demand totaling 56 cents an hour, including an 11-cent cost-of-living increase in the first year of a three-year contract. Five cents could be eliminated in future years if living costs decline sufficiently.

Union sources said the company's latest offer was rejected unanimously by the approximately 700 local union delegates meeting here.

W. O. TWAITS
... good yearProduction
By Imperial

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil set records in the production of crude oil and natural gas and volumes of products manufactured and sold in 1966, W. O. Twaits, president of the company, said Thursday.

Writing in the company's annual report, Mr. Twaits said 1966 was generally a good year for the oil industry with a continued increase in product demand which further reduced excess refinery capacity.

Mr. Twaits said the demand for oil and its products is expected to increase about four per cent a year.

He said the royal commission inquiring into the gasoline price structure in B.C. recognized that free competition is the best protection gasoline buyers have against unfair prices.

In the fall of 1966, Nova Scotia announced the appointment of a royal commission to investigate factors which make up the price of gasoline and diesel fuels. This was the fifth such study since 1960.

The company reported earnings of $92,408,000, up seven per cent over 1965. Earnings per share were $2.90 compared with $2.71 the previous year.

Capital and exploration expenditures rose to $140,000,000, up 21 per cent from 1965.

Lafarge Predicts Increased Sales

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lafarge Cement of North America Ltd., in its annual report, has predicted increased sales of cement, ready-mixed concrete, concrete products and building materials.

The company reported a net profit of $1,466,473 in 1966, equal to $1.19 a share, a gain of eight per cent over 1965.

Sales — excluding inter-company sales — totalled $16,831,389, an increase of seven per cent.

Shipments to the U.S. Atlantic seaboard rose from 73.8 million board feet to 95.7 million feet last month, while in the two months the amount went from 158.9 million feet to 207.3 million feet.

Shipments to California declined from 1.9 million board feet to 535,724 board feet in February, again compared with a year ago.

But this may be attributed to the fact that no shipments were made to California in the first month of this year. The two-month total last year was 6.3 million feet.

The United Kingdom took 900,000 board feet more last month than in the same period last year, for a total 37.9 million feet. The two-month total rose from 69.4 to 80.5 million feet.

was the highest bidder, paying $405,578 and $217,576, respectively, for two drilling reservations located 60 miles east of Fort Nelson.

Highest permit price paid was $334,556 by British American Oil Co. Ltd. The combination of Banff Oil Ltd. and Aquitaine Company of Canada Ltd. acquired four permits for a total of $870,383. The 11 permits sold Thursday brought a total of $2,378,538. Pubco Canadian Petroleum Corporation of Calgary acquired an interest in one permit.

Mines Minister Brothers said the results of the sale points to the continued active exploration and interest on the part of the oil industry in northeastern B.C.

Ward System Would Be a Mistake For Greater Victoria, Says Mayor

By JIM HUME

Reverting to the ward system to stimulate interest in civic elections would be a sad mistake say two Greater Victoria municipal leaders.

Mayor Hugh Stephen, and Esquimalt Reeve Ray Bryant were commenting on a suggestion made recently by Coun. Robert McMath, Richmond, that major changes in the structure of local government must be made if the electorate is to become more deeply involved in local government elections.

One of the recommendations was that municipalities be divided into natural neighborhoods and that each area elect one or more councillors. "That is another way of describing the old ward system," Mayor Stephen said. "I would strongly oppose any serious recommendation along those lines.

"All modern opinion agrees that the ward system has little to commend it. It is completely redundant.

"At best — and worst — it could only lead to parochialism and sectionalized government."

Mayor Stephen said the only time he could see the ward system working or required in Greater Victoria would be during the early years of an amalgamated municipal government.

"I think that one day we shall see amalgamation," he said. "When we do it is quite possible that for the first few years the ward system might well be the temporary price we would have to pay."

"But I don't think it would be too long before the people demanded that we go back to the present system."

"In the United States the ward system is associated with the worst forms of graft and the grossest form of favoritism."

Reeve Bryant said Coun. McMath's suggestion would "be a throw-back to the ward system, a system which has failed so miserably in the past."

He added that the ward system could only lead to the presentation of narrow, parochial views.

"You would rapidly have the situation where the man representing one particular area would present very biased views," he said. "Under those circumstances councils would find themselves bogged down with no one able to clearly see the overall needs of the community."

Both men were equally opposed to another McMath recommendation for sparking interest in municipal government.

Coun. McMath suggested that the present election system of electing half a municipal council each year be scrapped and replaced by a system which would see the entire council up for election every two years.

Coun. McMath said the two-year total election would result in more new blood on council and a more refreshing outlook.

"Local government is not in good health," he stated. "When it is representative it is so by chance rather than by design."

'HAPPY BLEND'

Mayor Stephen said he could not agree with Coun. McMath's suggestion.

"Under the present system we have a very essential continuity of government," he said. "It gives us a happy blend of experience and new blood."

Reeve Bryant said an election every two years of the entire council could be a dangerous thing.

"An entire council could be wiped out by what could be a minor but highly emotional issue," he said. "People wouldn't stop to think of the good work done throughout the year."

"I think it would be very foolish to introduce such a system. I can't see how it could benefit a community to replace an entire council overnight with men or women inexperienced in municipal government."

Campbell Probing Welfare Chronic Care Predicament

Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell said Thursday his department is investigating the plight of welfare patients receiving care in private hospitals.

Ald. Lily Wilson and Coun. Edith Gunning, Saanich, were informed of the possible changes in the handling of welfare patients during a meeting with the minister.

Ald. Wilson had arranged the interview on the instructions of Victoria city council which expressed alarm last week at the possibility of welfare patients being refused accommodation in private hospitals.

No firm commitment was made by Mr. Campbell but it was indicated that there may be a further increase in the $230-a-month now paid for chronic care.

Private hospital operators have stated that they cannot provide the services required for $230 a month.

Ald. Wilson said she and Coun. Gunning were well received by Mr. Campbell.

"We were courteously treated and the minister seemed very interested in the problem," she said.

GROOS RESIGNATION

Slanging Denied By Ex-Minister

Former justice minister E. Davie Fulton today denied that he had implied Victoria MP David Groos of feigning illness to quit the Commons Defence Committee.

The implication was attributed to Mr. Fulton in a Canadian Press dispatch from Halifax. It brought an angry denial from Mr. Groos and criticism from Esquimalt-Saanich MP George Chatterton.

Mr. Fulton told the Times by telephone from his home riding, Kamloops:

"It is regrettable that Mr. Chatterton did not check his facts before making his criticisms."

"At no time did I say or imply that Mr. Groos' resignation as chairman of the defence committee was due to anything other than illness."

He said he was asked by a reporter whether Mr. Groos' resignation was due to the fact that he disagreed with the government policy on unification.

"I replied that I was not prepared to discuss or impute motives to any member of parliament with respect to his conduct other than what he himself declared."

"I further stated that so far as I knew it was a fact that Mr. Groos had been admitted to hospital and that this was the reason for his resignation as chairman of the committee."

"In reply to a further question I said that it might be possible that the turmoil surrounding the issue had contributed to Mr. Groos' condition, but that so far as I was concerned the record was clear that he had resigned on his admission to hospital and I was not going to speculate as to the possible causes of his condition because I did not know them."

"That was the whole effect of the interchange at the press conference. Any suggestion that I implied sham to Mr. Groos is totally inaccurate. I respect him as an individual and as a member of Parliament."

"Whether or not there was an inaccurate report of the press conference upon which Mr. Chatterton relied, I do not know for I have never seen one. I do know that Mr. Chatterton has never discussed the matter with me."

"I find it startling and regrettable that such a criticism should be made without checking the facts and I am certainly sorry if Mr. Groos has been caused any embarrassment by the inaccurate statement made by Mr. Chatterton."

Tanker Now Scrap Iron

U.K. Ends Bombing Oil Free Wreck; Move to Prevent Repeat of Disaster

LONDON (AP)—Britain today wrote off the Torrey Canyon as scrap iron.

The government turned its attention to the battle to drive the supertanker's oil from England's southern beaches and a campaign for international legal action to deal with repetitions of the disaster.

With all the oil apparently out of the wreck, the admiralty said there would be no further bombing of the wreckage on the Seven Stones reef off the southwest tip of England. Nor will divers be sent down to inspect the oil tanks.

"We regard it as oil-free scrap iron," a spokesman said. An official statement said Prime Minister Wilson's government has asked for an early meeting of the intergovernmental Maritime Consultative Organization. The government said it was preparing proposals for action when a ship sinks outside territorial waters and threatens a country's interests.

The chief target will be the big tanker fleets sailing under "flags of convenience," usually Liberia's or Panama's, to escape taxes and union wages. The Torrey Canyon, although owned by the Union Oil Co. of California, was registered in Liberia.

Meanwhile it appeared that the broken wreckage of the 38,000-gross-ton tanker had given up the last of the 35,800,000 gallons of crude oil that were in her holds when she ran on the Seven Stones reef during a storm March 17. For the first time since then the sea around the reef was clear of oil for more than a mile.

SCORE DIRECT HITS
After three days of bombing the wreckage, Royal Navy planes scored three direct hits Thursday which started only small fires that went out quickly.

"It looks as though this probably is the end of the bombing operation," said Home Secretary Roy Jenkins, "but we still have the crisis of dealing with the oil at sea and that which comes ashore."

Hanoi Asks Ronning's Whereabouts

LONDON (CP)—The Canadian government still believes that former ambassador Chester Ronning is one of the best links it has with Hanoi, diplomatic officials said today.

They said that neither his prestige nor his usefulness as a special emissary has been hurt by his public criticism of American bombing of North Vietnam.

External Affairs Minister Martin told a reporter here Thursday that Hanoi has been asking for the whereabouts of the retired Canadian diplomat who participated in peace talks with Hanoi last year.

Martin said that if this is followed by the slightest indication that North Vietnam wants to engage in further talks, Ronning will be displaced at once by the Canadian government.

RONNING COMMENTS
In Canada, Ronning said in a telephone interview from his home at Camrose, Alta., that he had received no indications of a new peace move from Hanoi.

Evicted NATO Settles Down In Belgium

BRUSSELS (AP)—Foreign troops once again are moving into Belgium as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's military command settles down at an ancient military camp 30 miles south of Brussels after being evicted from France.

Preceded by tons of desks, files, maps, telephones, typewriters and radio equipment, members of SHAPE—the Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe—began operations today in the village of Casteau. Wives, children and furniture are still arriving.

Shape is the first of three Atlantic Alliance agencies moving to Belgium this year and bringing with them about 10,000 persons. The NATO council, the alliance's political arm, will come from Paris in September, and the military staff committee will come later from Washington.

Shape's new offices at Casteau, near Mons, were erected in less than six months. Belgium will try to build the NATO council's headquarters even faster.

Belgian reaction to the coming of the NATO personnel is mixed. King Boudouin and Premier Paul van den Boeynants led welcoming efforts. But some members of Parliament voiced reluctance to accept the foreign troops. The government didn't stop haggling over rent for the living quarters for NATO's military commander, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, until it learned that France lodged Lemnitzer free.

Representatives of Lloyd's and Union Oil spent more than 13 hours Thursday questioning Capt. Pastrengo Rugiati, master of the Torrey Canyon, in a hotel suite in Genoa.

In Brussels, Arthur Haulot, president of the International Union of Official Travel Organizations, said an estimated 12,000,000 tons of oil—or 100 times the amount aboard the Torrey Canyon—are washed overboard every year by tankers sailing the high seas.

Haulot said: "No area in the world is safe from oil pollution. Furthermore, international action has been too slow to cope with the terrible threat to the world community."

RECORDERS RECOVERED FROM JETLINER WRECK

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The recovery of a Delta jet's flight and voice recorders may provide clues to the cause of the crash that killed 18 persons Thursday.

The recorders were found at the scene of the crash and sent to Washington for examination. Civil Aeronautics Board investigators, meanwhile, continued digging through bits of the airliner that crashed into a motel filled with high school children.

Both recorders showed fire damage, but a C.A.B. spokesman said they appeared to be in good shape. A flight recorder transcribes such things as altitude, rate of speed, ascent, descent and direction. A voice recorder records all conversations in the cockpit.

Pill Believed Safer Than Smoke

WINNIPEG (CP)—Recent child care sponsored by the Manitoba Medical Association, Dr. Paul Adams, clinical tutor at the university, said that from evidence the Pill might prevent his personal Roman Catholic cancer.

Dr. Leon Rubin, University of Manitoba assistant professor of obstetrics, said 12 years of "massive use and constant checking" plus continued research have laid many fears and doubts about the pill to rest.

During a panel discussion at a conference on maternal and child care, Dr. Rubin said that from evidence the Pill might prevent his personal Roman Catholic cancer. "There is no evidence of long-term side reactions. We think rather a means to responsible parenthood."

EVINRUDE V-4

130.9 M.P.H.

AND THAT'S THE FASTEST!

Only the Evinrude V-4 engine design could possibly do it.

The motor was an Evinrude Starlite V-4 100-S. The world outboard record was certified by the American Power Boat Association. The place was Lake Havasu, on the Arizona-California border. C. W. Jones, owner of the boat said, "The low profile and low centre of gravity of the Evinrude motor permitted the design of a boat that offered minimum wind resistance. The engine's low speed torque power allowed us to get the boat airborne quickly." The record speed run tested the most advanced ignition system on the market. Evinrude's All-Electronic Ignition, no mechanical contacts, no breaker points. Nothing to pit, or corrode, or wear. All-Electronic ignition is now standard equipment on the Evinrude Starlite V-4 100-S. More significant, Evinrude was the choice of power because of famed Evinrude reliability and V-4 motor design. But, to make a record, you must have broken an old one. And that was set in 1960. The motor, an Evinrude V-4 75. The power of experience does make Evinrude first in outboards.

Forget the claims—look at the facts and make this your year for Evinrude. There are eighteen models in the Evinrude power range: 3.5, 5, 9.5, 15, 18, 33, 40, 60, 80 and 100 HP, plus 5 OMC Fastback Stern Drive models—80, 120, 155, 185 and 200 HP. ## WAKEHAM HAS CREDENTIALS...

Bill Draws Favorite's Role

Only six professionals are entered in the Times Vancouver Island Open golf championships, but look to one of them to fill the role of favorite.

That would be Bill Wakeham.

Twice a former winner of the Island's major match-play trophy, in 1959 and 1963, Wakeham is generally being touted as the prime favorite for this year's tournament.

The chase starts Sunday with the 18-hole qualifying round at Victoria Golf Club. The best 32 low gross scorers and another 32 low net markers start the match-play battles the following weekend at Colwood.

The six-week run winds up with the 36-hole finals on May 7, also to be played at Colwood.

Certainly the 26-year-old Wakeham, an unattached pro but a member at Gorge Vale, is one of the favorites for medalist honors Sunday.

His credentials are impressive. Canadian junior champion at 16, he twice came along to win the B.C. Amateur crown and has participated in international play as a member of Canada's World Cup, America's Cup and Commonwealth teams.

He has matched the unofficial course records at Victoria (62) and Colwood (65), and holds the official mark at Gorge Vale (65).

Other pros entered include Norm Boden of Cowichan, the 1961 Times Open champion; former finalist Bill Court of Oak Bay, Mel Carlow of Gorge Vale and Colwood's Earl Davies.

A total of 154 amateurs stack up against the pros in the qualifying test that gets under way at 7 a.m.

Weary Calgary Contractor Builds Best Record in Seniors' Bonspiel

MONTREAL (CP) — Jack Bury, a 58-year-old electrical contractor from Calgary's North Hill Curling Club, said he was tired going into today's final rounds of the third annual national seniors' curling championship.

But tired or not, Bury had skipped his rink into top spot in the bonspiel.

He tangled with Hazeh (Ducky) Pond of Prince Albert, Sask., in today's morning round before taking on Sudbury's Arnold Chisnell, representing Northern Ontario.

Bury was leading with a 7-1 record and two victories today would assure him of the title.

TIED FOR SECOND

Three other rinks remained in contention and if a playoff or playoffs are required they will be held tonight and Saturday morning.

Saskatchewan and New Brunswick's Jim Murphy from the Saint John Tangle Curling Club were tied for second place with six wins and two losses, while British Columbia's Vancouver foursome skipped by Frank Avery had a 5-3 record.

Bury said he "just couldn't get going" in his ninth-round 9-8 win over Quebec Thursday night.

Three games in a day are too much when you're over 55," Bury said. "But then I guess most of the rinks are tired so it all even out."

Plans for next year call for the seniors to play a maximum of two rounds daily.

The Calgary foursome earlier had beaten P.E.I. 8-7 in an extra end afternoon match and stymied Ontario 8-5 in the morning.

Saskatchewan stayed in contention by scoring a come-from-behind 7-5 win over stubborn Newfoundland Thursday night. The New Brunswickers started the day in the first place

QUEEN SCOUTS TOLD:

And Specialize

By GLEN ALLEN

There was Donald McLaren from Victoria, Johnny Johnson from Vancouver, Ray Hayes from Honeycomb Bay, Steve Milne from Saanich and Douglas Webster from Webster's Corners.

There was Jeremy Irons from Whitehorse, Mike Sanderson from Penticton and Bob Kistner from Burnaby.

There were boys from Port Alberni and Nelson, Roseland and Creston, Kinross and Kitimat.

And there was Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, patron of British Columbia's Queen Scouts, who said of the 242 assembled at Government House Thursday they were "a proud and worthy company."

"I'm sure the Queen would be delighted to see you here today," said the Lieutenant-Governor. "And when I see her this summer I will tell her of you."

SCOUTS TOO

His Honor told the Queen's Scouts of 1967 that their forefathers, who settled Canada 100 years ago, were in a sense "scouts" too.

"They had a mighty tough time," he said.

"They had none of the conveniences we have today."

"They believed in this country and they believed they could make a success of this life."

"They said that this would be a good land. And this has been a good land."

SPECIALIZE

The lieutenant-governor told the scouts to take up the challenge of specialization in the modern age.

"In the rush and tear of modern life you have to pick one or two things and specialize."

Following the lieutenant-governor's talk he was applauded for a full two minutes. One of the boys he had just honored returned the favor on behalf of the audience by presenting a plaque and figurine of a scout to him.

Youngest of the Queen Scouts this year and probably the youngest in Canada this, or any other year, was Bruce Irons, 12, of Whitehorse.

Both he and his brother Jeremy, 14, were invested at the ceremony.

Returns Chief;
Reports Deficit

Douglas R. Abbott was re-elected president of the board of directors of the Queen Alexandra Solarium on Thursday.

Other officers elected at the annual meeting were Lt.-Col. C. W. King vice-president and John H. Holdstock secretary.

The hospital's operating deficit for 1966 was $37,000.

All 50 doctors on the honorary medical staff were re-elected by acclamation.

Chief Subject

College professors from the west coast of Canada and the United States will attend a conference at the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, Saturday starting at 10 a.m.

It is being held under auspices of the West Coast Humanities Association and Prof. Gerald Morgan, an executive of the Humanities Association, will be in the chair.

One of the chief subjects to be discussed is that of aids and grants to education.

Up until last year Queen's Scouts had to be 14 years of age to qualify for scouting's highest honor.

Twenty-four of the scouts were from the Greater Victoria region.

All were treated to a trip to Vancouver today aboard the HMCS St. Croix and Columbia.

He Donates
His Gifted Fingers

It's men like Walter Rothe who will save God Save the Queen.

He plays it at teas, sing-songs and service club meetings.

He plays at church, conventions, fairs, schools and homes for retired editorial writers.

Thursday he played it — twice — at the Government House Queen's Scout ceremonies.

"Oh, I can play anything you want," said Mr. Rothe who, as a Lion's Club member, donates his gifted fingers to worthy causes.

"But I usually end up with the anthem."

Mr. Rothe works for an office equipment firm and between numbers checks invoices and drafts his correspondence.

Thursday, after the investiture of scouts he had a musical date with pioneer citizens of Oak Bay at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

"And this morning someone phoned from Ganges to say he'd heard I could play the good old tunes."

"I guess I'd better go."

MS Society Gives

In making the presentation, president W. H. Phillips spoke of Mr. Willis' "many years of devoted service on behalf of the society."

HOME GARDEN

Child's Garden
Rates Place in Sun

By HILDA BEASTALL

Once it has been decided that a child shall have a garden plot for his or her own, the most important step is to locate it in a suitable spot.

Privately you may feel that it should be hidden behind a hedge or on the off side of the garage where nobody ever goes and the soil is too poor for anything you yourself might want to grow.

But don't do this to your child. If you are blessed with a long memory it will recall your own first efforts at gardening and the pride with which you showed the results to family and friends.

Give your child the satisfaction of a plot of good garden soil. Help him to edge it around with stones perhaps, or offer to help him put in a miniature hedge of some permanent plant which you can supply.

Too many children's gardens have no feature which carries over into the next year and I believe this lack of permanence accounts for the interest being so fleeting in the majority of cases.

How much a part of your life and mine would our gardens become if we grew only short season plants? We must have things which carry over the winter to show us renewed signs of growth in spring.

So there should be at least one permanent feature in the child's garden. A miniature shrub or even a small, slow growing tree which the child can show with pride as the years go by. And be sure to keep a record of the planting date.

Seeds of quickly germinating vegetables are useful and interesting, but don't forget that your child is as beauty conscious as you are. You may have noticed a preference for certain colors, not always red as some would have us believe. You will have the knowledge of which quick-growing annuals to suggest so that the desired colors may be grown.

Guidance and assistance will be needed, and accepted, if you offer it in a co-operative way, and a child will cherish the gift of a plant for his own garden as much as you do yourself.

Praise the effort put into the project even though it amounts to only 15 minutes a day, and be genuinely enthusiastic over the results. They may surprise you.

NEUROTICS ALSO HELPED, SAYS RESEARCHER

Alcoholism Cures Reported Using LSD

By THOMAS O'TOOLE

BALTIMORE (WP) — LSD has helped to rehabilitate 67 per cent of 144 alcoholics and all but 2 of 47 chronic neurotics treated with the drug at Maryland's Spring Grove state hospital, a prominent psychiatrist reported Thursday.

"Even if our high success rate turns out to be a factor of therapeutic enthusiasm," said Dr. Charles Savage, director of research at Spring Grove and assistant professor of psychiatry at the Johns Hopkins University school of medicine, "any therapy that can mobilize so much enthusiasm and attendant success must have something in it."

At a symposium on drugs and the brain sponsored by Baltimore's Friends of Psychiatric Research, Savage left little doubt he felt his success due to more than therapeutic enthusiasm.

Savage began treating alcoholics with LSD three years ago. Of 144 alcoholics so treated, 75 have gone a year or more without another treatment, and have reversed what Savage called "the downward path of chronic alcoholism."

Those alcoholics cured ranged from a "very bright" business executive to an illiterate fourth-grade dropout with an IQ of 70.

"One year after LSD," Savage said, "the dropout has had only one break-in-sobriety and his wife reports a new peace and harmony in the home."

A seven-year alcoholic who lost both his job and his wife, the business executive, was Savage's prize case.

In the course of psychotherapy, Savage said, this man learned that he led a dual existence, "that of a person displayed to the world and that of the real self, a shy, sensitive and easily hurt person" who used alcohol to strengthen that personality.

On understanding his problem, the patient was given a single dose of LSD. In the company of a nurse and a therapist. While under the influence of the drug, he was urged by the therapist to relive the happier days he enjoyed before alcoholism.

WHAT DID I DO?

Coin-Flipping
'Front-Man'
Blames FBI

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Somebody must have put the finger on me," said George Raft, barred from England as an "undesirable."

"The only thing I can figure is that it was the FBI," Raft said. "And so I'm going to try to see J. Edgar Hoover and find out what they've got against me."

The one-time coin-flipping gangster of the movies was discussing the latest blow in a decade of personal trouble. For a year he had been from man and greaser for George Raft's Colony Sporting Club, a Las Vegas-type casino in London, where gambling is legal.

During a trip home, Raft was notified that he was one of eight Americans whose "continued presence in the United Kingdom would not be conducive to the public good."

A month later, Raft still is shocked.

"They haven't accused me of anything; they've just barred me from the country without charges, without a trial or anything. And just when I was about to start participating in the profits of the Colony. All I got was an apartment, the use of a car and a small salary until the investors were paid off. Now they have been, but I won't be there to collect."

WILL WAIT FOR HOOVER

"I suppose the British had some information on me, and it must have come from the FBI. I'm going to New York this week to see about a job, and I plan to drop down to Washington and wait in Hoover's office until he sees me."

"Hell, I'm not a member of any mob, never was. Sure, I know some guys that are, but I know a lot of people."

"What have I got to do to clear myself? I lead a quiet life. I don't ask for any trouble. I have never taken a drink. I don't get in any fights. If my offense is broads, then I plead guilty. That's the one thing they can accuse me of."

Raft, who was married briefly in 1923 to Gracey Mulrooney and never divorced, claims to have spent $1,000,000 on "broads." Such extravagances and a fading career as a film tough guy led to his financial troubles. In 1965 he was fined $2,500 after pleading guilty to tax evasion. Since 1957 he has suffered a series of personal and financial disasters in Cuba, Las Vegas, London and elsewhere.

Raft, still dapper at 71, will be seen on ABC-TV April 23 on a special about his one-time co-star, Humphrey Bogart. That has been his only recent job.

U.S. Farmers Angry

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—The National Farmers' Organization, faced with a federal anti-trust suit, has accused the Johnson administration of trying to stop farmers from bargaining for fair prices for their products.

STIFF UPPER LIP has long been a British characteristic, but now a bristly upper lip is also back in style. Simon Boyles, 26, in his Chelsea, London shop, offers false moustaches and wears one himself. Sales indicate they soon may be as popular as false eyelashes for women. Wide variety enables purchaser to suit his soup strainer to his mood. (AP Wirephoto.)

'Draft-Dodger' Flow
To Canada Mounts

NEW YORK (CP)—Ramparts magazine says in 1966 between 2,500 and 3,000 American men, usually referred to as draft dodgers, moved to Canada from the United States.

It adds that the Vietnam war has something to do with the departure of many others to Canada.

In an article by Toronto-born Donald Duncan in its April issue, the magazine says only half a dozen of some 160 "new Cana-

QUEBEC (CP)—Ann Wickham, Montreal actress and critic and adjudicator at the Eastern Quebec Regional Drama Festival, Thursday described Marcel Dube's play Zone, as presented by Studio d'art dramatique du centre culturel St. Jean Eudes de Quebec, as a "good evening's theatre."

She praised the direction and said the "enunciation and technique were excellent and the suspense was maintained throughout."

"One felt the energy of the actors, and their exits and entrances—all very difficult—were most successful."

This evening, la Troupe de la Marmite de Jonquiere will present "L'Auberge des mort subites" by Felix Leclerc. The festival continues until Sunday.

MORE LAND FOUND

Aircraft surveys found 5,400 square miles of land in the Bahamas Islands, about 1,000 more than had been previously thought.

OPERA GOES MOD

BOSTON (AP)—The Opera Company of Boston went mod about Igor Stravinsky Wednesday night, staging his only full-length opera, The Rake's Progress, in swinging 1967 terms.

Costumes were mod—mini-skirts and vinyl; lighting was psychedelic; dances were staged by the darling of the discotheque, Killer Joe Piro.

Surprisingly, the opera which Stravinsky set in the 18th century and wrote in an individualistic interpretation of neo-Mozart style, proved a natural for the switched-on treatment it received at the Back Bay Theatre.

When Tom Rakewell is lured to the city by Nick Shadow, he finds himself in a discotheque instead of a brothel. When he awakens, in Act II, bored by his new life, he is discovered wearing a Stravinsky sweatshirt, reclining under photographs of Allen Ginsberg and Timothy Leary.

His bride, a bearded lady according to Stravinsky and R. Brettis W. H. Auden and Chester Kallman, in this production turns out to be bearded only on half the face. The other half wears an earring and a dress. The singer is counter tenor John Ferrante.

Costumes were entirely in black and white and settings were in grey.

Politics 'Bores Me' Says Actor

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Scratch the name of Rock Hudson from any list of Hollywood box office kings who may aspire to enter the political arena.

Although he admits to some government experience — he once was a postman for three months — the six-foot-four film star says it left him without any burning desire to become U.S. postmaster-general.

"Politics bores me, and so does talking about it," he said, smiling. "I'm not interested in becoming a political candidate at any level."

What is Rock's big goal then, if not public service? "I want to be a damn good actor," he said, "and I don't think I'm a damn good actor yet."

Whatever his ultimate professional ranking may be, as a performer Hudson has been one of the most successful in the history of the film industry.

Since 1948, he has been in 52 pictures, an average of more than two each year. In 1966 he turned out three—Blindfold, Seconds and Tobruk. Recently he signed to star in Ice Station Zebra, a spy adventure yarn set in the frozen reaches of the far north.

Despite his surprising output, and it includes a number of clunkers as well as box office smashes, Rock doesn't think of himself as a particularly hard worker.

starting 53rd film

"I like to work hard," he remarked, "and I do work very hard if I have faith in a picture."

"But if I haven't, I can't muster the energy."

As the years go by Rock is more at ease in the role of film star, a gift he found difficult to play at first because of an almost overwhelming feeling of shyness which has bothered him since he was a big awkward kid back in his native town, Winnetka, Ill.

"I used to be terribly, painfully shy — so shy that I wouldn't talk," he recalled. "Now I'm no longer painfully shy, but I'm still shy."

Nottingham Forest Unchanged As Sheriff Pays the Poacher

DETROIT (AP)—Things haven't changed much in Nottingham, England, since the days of Robin Hood.

The sheriff still can't hit the bulls-eye and poaching is on the rise in Sherwood Forest.

Elliott M. Durham, current sheriff of Nottingham, was in Detroit Thursday to help promote the ninth annual international indoor open archery tournament this weekend at Cobo Hall.

Durham decided, for benefit of reporters, to try the long bow on a target in a park near downtown Detroit.

Resplendent in his 14th-century blue robe, cocked hat and chain of office, the sheriff missed several shots before a couple of arrows struck the target 25 yards distant.

Asked whether the original sheriff of Nottingham might have done better, Durham replied: "Well, I should think he was a lot better shot than I am."

Robin Hood? "He was a resistance leader," said Durham. "He did a good job in his own way."

As for the crime rate in Nottingham today:

Arthur Mayse

Most of us consider birthdays a time for getting rather than giving. Today, let me, present Abraham Gowler, a Victoria dweller who, to mark his ninety-second anniversary, and as his own Centennial project, has reversed the process.

Mr. Gowler has been giving... and I am honored to be among the numerous recipients of his bounty.

Now, with a 'Many happy returns' no less hearty for coming two days late, I will let this other adoptive son of our city speak for himself in a few lines lifted from the paper of verses that accompanies his gift.

This is, as you know, our Centennial Year. A time to remember, to thank and to cheer. And you are aware that there's nary a doubt- That I have had much to be cheerful about.

For over fourscore years I have lived and dined. Blest with a strong body and fairly good mind- I have hearing and sight and can swallow my chow. I've a bit laid by which I shall use NOW.

And for my Centennial Project I plan To share some of it at once with my kind fellowman (And organizations that do a good work). Including some saints I have met at The Kirk. As for my own crisp and crackly gift, it has gone to a blue-bonneted lady called Sally Ann, an old friend who will put it to the best possible use.

Next dip into the mail brings up a letter from ex-Montrealer R. Shaw, who terms himself a visitor to Victoria and feels I dealt unfairly with Quebec and Montreal a while back.

"Perhaps among the Victorians we have met here while visiting your city this winter," Mr. Shaw writes, "there have been too many with still-existing ties to Eastern Canada from where they came but all of them are genuinely interested in Montreal's World Festival. Among your tradespeople we have found the same interest - many of them planning to go to the Exposition. We have met none who are 'waiting to see'."

"Granted, the eight per cent sales tax is a shocker. But every resident consumer in the province will suffer - not only tourists. And it will doom border town trade."

"Wasn't it simply human nature that some landlords would try that lease eviction deal? Don't you think it would happen anywhere, even - perish the thought - in your British Columbia? Do you know that a deadline date was set quite some time ago, on and after which no landlord could evict a lease tenant? If you know, why not say so?"

Mr. Shaw has more to say, including, richly-deserved praise for Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau.

Like him, I hope that for the credit of Canada abroad as well as the pleasure and satisfaction of Canadian Expo visitors, all will now proceed smoothly.

To this end, I trust there will be no more gouging attempts for Montreal's own La Presse to report, and for LogExpo to take firmly in hand.

And to visitor R. Shaw, no address supplied, a gentle correction. What's preparing down there, I find in biographical notes on R. F. Shaw, deputy commissioner general of Expo, is the Canadian Universal and International Exhibition, Montreal, 1967.

At the start of the week, I mentioned a sailing ship called the Panther, which lies below tideline off the rocky tip of a little island next door to Salt Spring.

Fast as the mails could fetch it, I got a fat envelope from Salt Spring historian Garnet Young. It contains details about the wrecked clipper which I'll share with you later, and also some information about Salt Spring itself.

I never knew the island was once officially, but briefly, named 'Admiral'.

Its stubborn settlers, as Mr. Young puts it, 'scuttled' the Royal Navy's choice.

Steelers Need Backing in Football Bid

By DOUG PEDEN
Sports Editor

Victoria sports fans can have a better brand of professional football this season—if enough of them want it.

Indication of support in the form of pledges for purchase of season's tickets during the next month will probably decide the fate of Victoria Steelers.

Directors of the Victoria team, which performed last year in the Pacific Football

League and has been awarded a franchise in the new Golden West Division of the Continental League, announced after a meeting Thursday night that they are wrestling with these two main problems:

- Making arrangements to pay off obligations from last year's operations.
- Raising the $25,000 performance bond required from the league.

Originally the Steelers were to have paid a $2,500 franchise

fee by March 1 and the performance bond by April 1. "Time is running against us," club president Mike Griffin said today, "and the Steelers are asking other members of the league to give us a one-month period of grace, to May 1."

Today club officials were conducting a telephone poll of other franchise holders to learn if they would be granted an extra month to arrange financing.

"Following the poll vote," said Mr. Griffin, "we will be calling another board meeting, probably Monday."

"At that time the board will probably have to resolve this question:

"Is Victoria ready for pro football and able to support it to the extent of 5,000 per game for seven home games?"

Steelers are planning a budget of $105,000, which includes provision for paying of 1966 debts. They will play home games under lights at Royal Athletic Park with ticket prices ranging from $2 to $4.

Other teams in the division are Seattle, Portland, Eugene, Anaheim, San Jose, Sacramento and Phoenix.

"We feel we have some things going for us this season," Mr. Griffin said. "We will be playing night games and we will be playing in a new park, with better facilities for the fans."

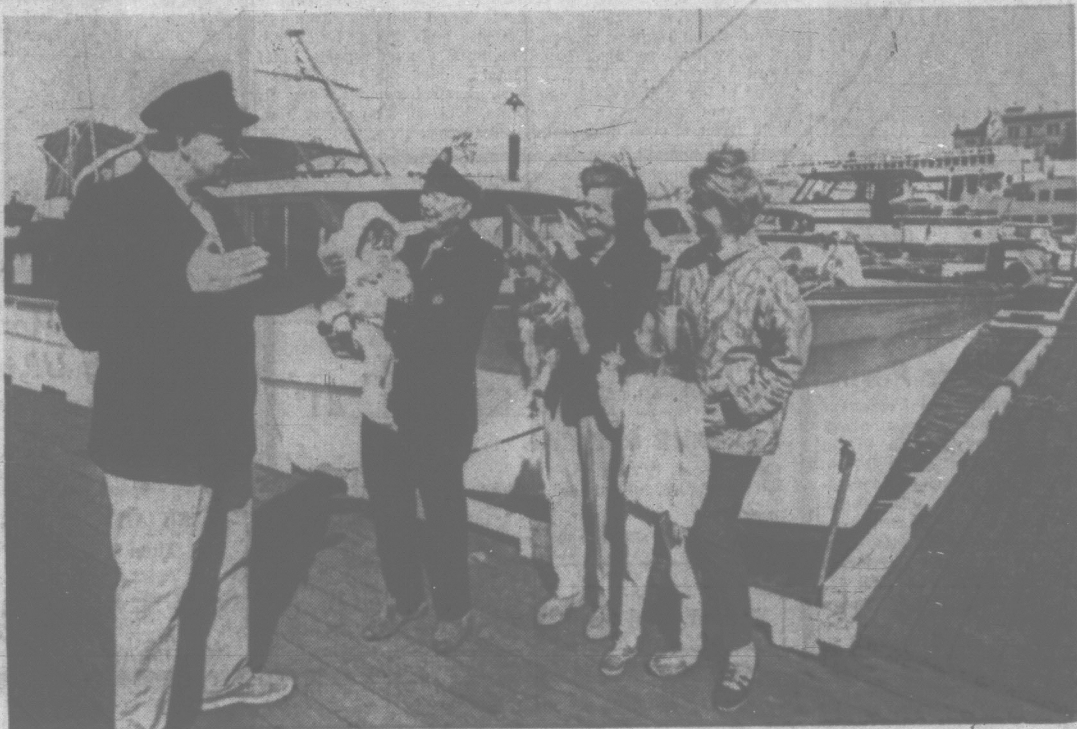

"We are quite confident of support and the directors are convinced that since this is a community effort, people will be advised of the position of the club at all times."

With the Steelers assured of "substantial" player support and playing in a league that is expected to be studied with stars, Victorians appear in line for an interesting football season.

It could all depend on how they support pre-season ticket sales, plans for which will be announced next week.

MIKE GRIFFIN
... asks support

WHAT CHANCE have I got? asks Dr. H. D. Middleton, of Victoria. One of 40 skippers taking part in the eighth annual Gulf of Georgia predicted log race Saturday, he might well ask. The man he's talking to is veteran skipper Charles N. Smith, of Burrard Yacht Club, who is entering his 42-foot power cruiser Vista Rose (background) for the fifth time. And to help him he has an all-female crew—his wife, daughter Mrs. Don Geggie, granddaughters Leanne Taylor, 7, and Linda Geggie, 1, and the dog Cappe, female of course. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

SAANICH STUDIES 12-POINT LAW

New Bylaw Will Regulate Private Patrol Agencies

By ROGER STONEBANKS

New controls over private patrol agencies are expected to become law in Saanich shortly.

A 12-point bylaw has been recommended by finance committee and is expected to come before council for initial readings Monday night.

There is no bylaw in this respect at the moment and council has not yet considered the proposed bylaw. In the past, efforts by at least one private patrol agency to gain a licence to operate in Saanich have been rejected by council.

PREVENT CONFUSION

Three parts of the proposed bylaw are aimed at preventing any confusion between private patrol agencies and police forces.

All written material used by such agencies must state in print not less than six point (slightly smaller than the type in this story) the following statement:

"This agency is privately owned and operated and is not connected in any way whatsoever with any police force."

In addition, no qualification of this statement shall appear in such written material.

TWO OTHER SECTIONS STATE:

● No private patrol agency shall wear, carry or exhibit or suffer to be worn, carried or exhibited and no employee of any private patrol agency shall wear, carry or exhibit any badge or insignia upon any apparel or vehicle or elsewhere upon anything used in the business of such agency which in any way resembles any badge or insignia in use by any police force" operating in the Capital Regional District, which extends from Port Renfrew to Sidney.

● No agency or employee shall use or wear or suffer or permit his employees to use or wear, in conducting the business of such agency, any uniform, suit, coat or mode of dress being or having the appearance of being a distinguishing uniform which might reasonably be confused with a uniform in use by any police force" in the Capital Regional District.

All agencies carrying on business in Saanich must give the police chief the names, ages, descriptions, addresses and fingerprints of operators and employees as well as "such other information" as the chief may require.

A list of owners and occupants of all premises the agency patrols must be filed with the police chief, plus a supplementary list each month of additions and reductions.

The schedule of rates must also be provided. No agency may use dogs unless the dogs are securely held at all times on a leash not exceeding 20 feet.

No agency or employee shall solicit business in Saanich before 8 a.m. or after 6 p.m.

Other provisions cover business licences and security by way of cash or bearer bonds. (A City Hall spokesman said Victoria does not have a bylaw governing private patrol agencies, but they are governed by a provincial law, the Private Detective Licensing Act. The agencies in Victoria must have municipal business licences.)

MARINE RADIO MOVES

It's 'Over and Out' At Gordon Head Site

Victoria marine radio station went on the air for the first time today from its new home west of Sooke.

At 3:49 p.m. the wires were still humming at the old Gordon Head station.

At 4 p.m. the station received its last message.

Without any break in communications, the familiar radio signals were beamed to their new home on Whiffin Spit.

The changeover marked the first time in 27 years that the Gordon Head station had been silent.

Day and night it has kept in touch with ships at sea, relaying hum-drum messages, listening in for emergency calls assisting in air-sea rescue searches.

UVIC NEEDS PROPERTY
It's death warrant was signed by the growing number of houses in the area which interfered with signals and the expanding university which needs the property.

Along with its new location, the radio station inherits new buildings and equipment.

As a result, the department of transport service will be expanded.

New duties include gathering of meteorological information and duplex radio-telephone service which will allow ships at sea to link up with the B.C. Telephone system.

The new transmitting towers at Sheringham Point, 12 miles west of Sooke, will also broadcast and receive stronger signals.

The first ever marine radio station was built on Gonzales Hill in 1908 and remained there until the move to Gordon Head.

Retain Authority to Impose Taxes

One of the claims made by the trustees is that they must retain the authority to impose taxes for school purposes.

"If trustees, through their school boards in their districts are to possess any degree of local control, they must exercise local financial responsibility by having the authority to impose local taxation," the manifesto states.

"They now have this authority through the real property tax and any elimination of this source of revenue would erode the basis for their local control in the field of education," it continues.

"Their responsibility in this field is at least a disguised responsibility," said Mayor Stephen.

"They do indeed impose taxation, but not with the degree of responsibility required by the municipal governments who have to actually raise the money.

"When we send out the tax bill, we are the ones who are held responsible for any increases."

Mayor Stephen said he was not advocating in any way that two tax billing organizations should be established.

"What I am saying is that this whole thing should be lifted from our (municipal) backs and placed on the back of the province," he said.

Mayor Stephen said he had long been an advocate of a standardized approach to education.

"I believe that every child in British Columbia — indeed the ideal would be in Canada — should be able to look for the same standards wherever he may go to school," he said.

Statement Called 'Very Misleading'

"Under the present system pupil-teacher ratios vary from area to area, teachers' salaries vary from area to area and the schools themselves vary in what they can offer a child."

"If the financing of education was made a provincial responsibility, school children, wherever they happened to be, could expect and would receive equal opportunity."

Mayor Stephen noted that it had long been a prime recommendation of the UBCM and of individual municipal governments that the heavy tax load on property be reduced.

"This manifesto is in direct contradiction of those aims," he said.

Mayor Stephen termed "very misleading" a statement in the manifesto claiming that the municipalities of British Columbia include only one per cent of the area of the province within their jurisdiction.

It further claims that members of the BCSTA embrace virtually the entire province and consequently raise money for school taxation in areas unaffected by municipal taxation.

"That is a very misleading statement," Mayor Stephen said. "It may well be that the municipalities have jurisdiction over only one per cent of the total area of B.C. — but what of the percentage of people?"

"Municipalities have under their jurisdiction between 70 and 80 per cent of the population — and I think that figure may well be higher."

"This, surely, is the comparison we must use if we are to deal in this type of percentage."

Flashers Precede New Traffic Light

Traffic lights will go in to operation at Blenkinsop Road and Cedar Hill Cross Road next week.

To prepare drivers for the change, flashing lights will be installed at the intersection this weekend.

The flashing red light will be on Blenkinsop and the flashing amber on Cedar Hill Cross Road.

A Different Home... A Different 'Me'

By DESMOND BILL

Foster children got personal this morning when they discussed what is wrong with present child welfare practices in B.C.

They met at the Red Lion Hotel in a conference sponsored by the provincial welfare department.

The meeting, first of its kind held in this province, was billed as a seminar on child care problems as seen through the eyes of the youngsters involved.

But from an intellectual discussion it quickly developed into what was practically a therapy session.

It started out impersonally and objectively as an analysis of the problems of communication between foster parents and foster children.

The youngsters pointed out that many foster-parents look on their wards as "trouble" or at least potentially a cause of trouble.

Result: the parents are defensive, on guard, watching every move the child makes.

The youngsters, feeling they are not being given a chance and uncomfortable in the watchful atmosphere, "don't stick around."

As one girl said, "We go out as much as possible."

They have other problems. If they talk in confidence to their social worker, chances are the worker will reveal what was said to their foster parents.

Anyway, the only time they see a social worker is when they are in trouble, in most cases.

Prodded by Dr. Bennett Wong, a noted Vancouver psychiatrist, the teen-agers admitted they have their defences too.

One boy who called his foster parents "two-faced"

admitted that "I'm phoney too."

Another participant, a girl, said, "If I had my way I'd like to live on a desert island with everything I want but no people. That way I wouldn't have to always explain myself to people or to myself."

Part of the problem is that many foster children live in a succession of foster homes. Living with different people, they have to behave "in different ways."

One said, "You are a different person with each family. How can you be yourself?"

Local Police Won't Apply Law Tonight

A new law empowering police to suspend for 24 hours the licence of borderline impaired drivers becomes effective at midnight tonight.

But local municipal police forces will not apply the controversial roadside suspension legislation until next Wednesday at midnight.

City police Chief J. F. Gregory said today the delay will enable the four forces in Greater Victoria to introduce their programs simultaneously.

Under the new law, a driver who questions a policeman's opinion that he has been drinking and shouldn't drive, can request a roadside breath test.

The supply of equipment for the test was just delivered to local forces today.

DISPUTED REZONING APPROVED

A bylaw calling for rezoning of The Latch property on All Bay Road, Sidney, was given final reading by Sidney council Thursday night.

The bylaw, which has been a source of controversy in the community for the past few weeks, was passed without discussion by a three-one vote with Ald. Norma Sealey casting the dissenting vote.

The bylaw means a subdivision can be built on the property.

MAN, WOMAN JAILED

A man was sent to jail for four months and a woman for 14 days today when they pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Harry Liddle, 1823 Chambers, was checked by Colwood RCMP Thursday evening while in his car on Glen Lake Road.

Court was told he was asleep behind the wheel.

Earlier he had been seen driving erratically on Sooke Road.

It was his third impaired driving offence.

Magistrate J. A. Byers also suspended Liddle's driving licence for a year.

Jailed for two weeks was Mrs. Francis Arnold, 1215 Lockley. Traffic court magistrate Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre also suspended her licence for six months.

Court was told Mrs. Arnold was charged following a collision Feb. 25. This was her second impaired driving offence.

Ol' Sol certainly must have had a dose of spring fever on Thursday, for he provided a beautifully bright day for the spring opening of the ladies' division, Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club. The women started off the day with a two-ball foursome competition, followed by luncheon, when ladies' captain Mrs. E. R. Rickinson presented the day's prizes to Mrs. J. L. Heffernan and Mrs. P. W. Carrods, highest score on a particular hole: Mrs. R. W. Owen and Mrs. R. W. Gasten, low gross; and Mrs. J. A. R. Jones and Mrs. A. B. Hall, Nanaimo, low net. Seen comparing notes on the morning's play are, left to right, Mrs. I. H. Flett, Mrs. G. L. Smith, Mrs. V. A. Gladman, wife of the club manager, Mrs. J. H. Nosworthy and Mrs. Gasten, a former Vancouver resident now making her home in Victoria. (Bill Halkett photo.)

DEAR ABBY . . .

Lady Friend Needs Professional Help

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am new in this community and have made many lovely new friends. I met a lady at church and invited her to my home for coffee and cake. It was then that I discovered that she is either a thief or a kleptomaniac, for when I went into the kitchen for a moment, and suddenly returned, I saw her open her large purse and drop my silver spoon and fork into it. You can't imagine how shocked I was! Now I do not want to make a big issue of it by preferring charges against her, but I do want my silverware back as those pieces are sterling silver and are part of my set. Do I dare ask her to return them? And if so, how? I have told no one and do not intend to.

MRS. NEWCOMER.
DEAR NEWCOMER: You are considerate, compassionate, and

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. My hair looks very nice from the front, but the back is too fluffy and my neck disappears. You can't see any of it, but I don't look well with my hair very short.

A. You didn't say how long you wear your hair, but you could compromise by wearing it a little shorter and having it thinned out a little or tapered at the back of the neck. You can also have the collars or necklines of your suits and dresses lowered in the back. Lots of women who have short necks do this.

Q. I am in my middle 40s, and my eyebrows are thinning very rapidly. This has just begun recently. What can I do to stop this?

A. The tendency is for the brows to thin as one grows older although some people have very heavy brows all of their lives. Since this has happened suddenly perhaps there is some systemic reason. Have a physical checkup. For instance, thyroid deficiency can cause this. Hormones may also play a part.

Q. Does nursing a baby necessarily ruin one's bustline?

A. No. I have seen many women who nursed their baby and had beautiful busts. It will ruin your bustline though, if you do not take preventive measures. Always lie down when nursing your child and wear brassieres during pregnancy and nursing period which are designed especially to support the increased weight.

Q. How long must a woman exercise each day to have a nice figure?

A. Fifteen minutes, if done correctly and regularly, will make a difference. A half hour, counting rest periods, is best. However, you should work up to that gradually.

Q. Should a woman who is five months pregnant take exercises to reduce her hips? Is it safe?

A. Women differ, but you surely should not take them without your doctor's permission. In most cases, walking is the best and safest exercise for this time. Take your figure molding exercises after your baby arrives.

Q. I have a lot of little moles on my arms. Could I remove them with a needle if I sterilize the needle first?

A. Never touch the moles. See your family doctor or a skin specialist. Let a trained person remove them. This can be done very easily by a doctor.

Q. I am allergic to the citrus fruits. What can I use in place of them on a reducing diet?

A. You can substitute tomato juice, but drink more of it. It doesn't have as many calories or as much Vitamin C.

wise. Telephone the lady and tell her you saw her take your silverware and would appreciate her returning it. Then tell her that you know there are people who have a compulsion to take things, which is an illness, so you "understand," will tell you one, and hope that she will seek professional help.

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago I married a fine young woman from a "good" family. She was 22 and I was 26. We were "in love," although she proposed to me, and pressured me into marrying her sooner than I had intended to.

Shortly after marriage, I found her to be moody, stubborn, and quarrelsome. If you are guessing that we are not very happy, you are correct. At my insistence we sought help from our clergyman. He gave us some lectures on "trying harder," but it didn't help much. Then we went to a marriage counselor, who suggested a trial separation. This my wife refused to do.

She has been seeing a psychiatrist for five weeks now and she insists that she is "well" now, and all we need to save our marriage is a baby. Abby, I don't want a family until I am absolutely sure that this marriage will last. If I tell her, it might upset her more. What should I do?

YOUNG HUSBAND
DEAR HUSBAND: Have a talk with her doctor and ask him how to handle it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HAVE I A CASE?" IN MENOMINEE, MICH.: It is said that "maternity" is a matter of fact; "paternity" can be a matter of opinion. You may have a case. And so may he. See a lawyer.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Jane Thorne Becomes Bride of Edward Carley

BRIDE WEARS FLOWERS IN HAIR

A bodice of heavy lace highlighted the floor-length gown of white peau de sole worn by Jane Margaret Thorne when she became the bride of Edward Carley. Back interest to her empire-line gown was the train which, extended from the waist, Her shoulder-length veil misted from a single gardenia, and tiny flowers were entwined in her hair. She carried a bouquet of spring flowers in pink and white tones.

Rev. H. R. Whitmore officiated at the ceremony in Garden City United Church, uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thorne, 5416 Alderley Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest William Carley, 3810 Merriman Drive. Mr. Thorne gave his daughter in marriage.

PINK AND WHITE
The church was decorated with arrangements of flowers in pink and white tones. Soloist Pierre Timp sang "This Day of Golden Promise" during the signing of the register, accompanied by organist Mrs. Ruth Powell.

Maid of honor Miss Catherine Boedet was wearing a floor-length gown of peau de sole in pink tones, styled with a train of organza extending from the shoulders. Her bouquet of spring flowers was white with pink accents.

were worn by bridesmaids, the Misses Molly English and Ida Williams. Lace accents highlighted the waists and sleeves, and trains extended back. Their bouquets were of white flowers with mauve highlights.

Little Caryl Madill was flower girl. She wore a mauve frock and a matching headband, and carried a nosegay of pink and white flowers. Master Keith Thorne, the bride's brother, carried the rings on a heart-shaped pillow of white satin, accented with mauve lace and ribbons.

Ernie Carley was best man for his brother. The bride's brother, Fred Thorne, and Ted Greenwood, ushered guests.

The bride's mother made the three-tier wedding cake, which centred the head table at the reception in McMorran's Sea-view Room. The cake was decorated in pink and white, and topped with white wedding bells. Ted Crampton proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Carley chose a navy blue and white coat and dress ensemble with matching accessories. Her corsage was pink.

Informal discussions include views of social workers, foster parents and the child care program. At the same time the foster parents meet for discussion on their role in the program. The two groups also conduct in-depth discussions and hear authoritative speakers together. But it's not all work and no play. Luncheons, suppers, swim parties have been planned for them all and on Thursday the young delegates gathered in the Red Lion ballroom for a dance. Arrangements of spring blossoms in every variety set the theme for the blossom time buffet held recently by the Oak Bay United Church Women in the George Gardiner Hall.

Guests helped themselves from food platters piled high with all sorts of taste-tempting treats and decorated with flower petals.

A major attraction of the event was a display and sale of work by Arbutus Crafts Association, handled by Mrs. H. Henderson. Convening the event, which realized $350, were Mrs. R. McDougall, Mrs. G. P. Kison, Mrs. C. McLaughlin and Mrs. A. Hall.

Managing refreshments were Mrs. E. Showers and Mrs. P. A. Gibbs; flowers, Mrs. J. L. LeHuquet and Mrs. F. M. Corbett; tickets, Mrs. W. J. W. Caffaro; home baking, Mrs. P. Bussling, Mrs. V. Milburn and Mrs. C. Lockhart.

Home at Peace River For Newlywed Couple

Following their wedding in St. John's Anglican Church, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lynn Williams left on a honeymoon trip travelling north to Peace River, Alta., where they will be making their new home.

The bride, the former JoAnn Rita Halfhide, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril G. Halfhide, 3047 Balfour Street, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Reg Williams, 3075 Larkdown Road.

Arrangements of lilies and other spring flowers decorated the church for the double-ring service conducted by Canon Graham Baker.

Organist D. Woodworth accompanied the singing of the boy's choir during the ceremony and Mr. Halfhide gave his daughter in marriage.

Delicate lace trimmed the sheer capelet which accented the bodice of the bride's floor-length organza gown. Similar accents circled the controlled skirt and a sheer detachable train swept back from the back waistline. Her "bouffant" veil misted to elbow length from a cluster of white roses and she carried daffodils and ivy in her cascade bouquet.

Matching gowns of rose-toned self-embossed brocade were worn by matron of honor Mrs. Brian Prior, bridesmaid Mrs. Robert Brazeau, and bridesmaid Miss Joan Williams. The groom's mother made their headpieces of toning tulip flowers edged with net. They carried tulips and other spring flowers in colonial bouquets.

The little flower girl, Shelly Stewart, was in a similar gown and headpiece. She carried a tiny basket of spring flowers. Best man was Fred Pye and ushering the guests to their pews were William Nesbitt and the bride's brother, Roger Halfhide.

The spring theme of the wedding was continued in the decorations at the reception following in The Inn. The tiered wedding cake which centred the head table was made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. R. O. Stewart. Mr. Stewart proposed the toast to the bride and Rick Acres' orchestra provided music for dancing.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Williams donned a loose-weave tweed suit in rose shade. She chose black accessories as added complements. A red rose corsage completed the outfit.

Heirloom Diamond Ring Chosen For Bride's 'Something Old'

Her great-great-grandmother's diamond ring was the "something old" talisman for Alice Adele Wheeler when she became the bride of John James Reid in the Church of Our Lord.

The bride's floor-length gown was of pure silk faille with a full skirt extending in soft folds from a fitted Basque waistline. Embroidered appliques trimmed the skirt and the full train. The bodice was fashioned with a scalloped oval neckline which was outlined with Chantilly lace and pearl appliques. A Grecian-inspired headpiece, trimmed with the same lace shimmering with pearls, held her three-tier veil of silk illusion-net. Stephanotis surrounded the orchid which she carried in her bouquet.

Floral arrangements in pink, white and mauve tones decorated the church when Bishop D. A. G. Rankin heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Richard Wheeler, 117 St. Lawrence Street, and the son of Mrs. N. Dixon, 673 McKenzie Avenue and the late

Actors Plan Baking Sale

Members of the Bastion Actors' Committee will take on a new role Saturday when they hold a bake sale in the Super Valu store at Oak Bay Junction. Donations for the sale, which begins at 10 a.m., should be taken to the store any time after 9 a.m. on Saturday.

A special feature will be recipes from the committee's cookbook "Theatre in the Kitchen" which will be displayed at the bake table.

pink and white carnations with mauve ribbon. Jewelry accents were the bride's gifts of sterling silver necklaces, studded with pearls.

Best man was Richard Bradley and ushering the guests were Joe Churchill, Al Holgate and Gary Ralph.

Frank Anderson proposed the toast to his niece at the reception which followed in the Union Centre. The head table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, made and decorated with pink and white roses by the bride's aunt, Mrs. C. Matte. Floral arrangements in the same color theme completed the table decorations.

The couple will be making their home at 230 Oswego Street, following a honeymoon trip motoring to San Francisco. For travelling the new Mrs. Reid donned a French imported ensemble of taupe boucle wool. The sheath dress was trimmed at the hem with lynx fur which was repeated on the cuffs of the turtleneck-length coat. She completed the outfit with a lynx fur hat.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

Are you expert at the beauty game or can someone play an April Fool's joke on you when it comes to grooming and cosmetics? Take this test to see how you fare. Select the A, B or C answer for each of the following — then check your score.

1. To keep your figure consistently shapely: (A) exercise religiously 10 minutes a day; (B) go on a crash diet; (C) wear a tight girdle.

2. For healthy-looking hair: (A) sit under a sun lamp daily; (B) brush 50 strokes a day; (C) wash your hair daily.

3. If your eyes always look tired: (A) put on eye cream and wear it all night; (B) give yourself a hot, hot washcloth massage; (C) get more sleep.

4. To tone down a ruddy complexion: (A) use darker makeup; (B) use a very pale makeup; (C) use green-toned under-makeup with regular foundation over it.

5. If you want a long-lasting hair set: (A) set the dryer for cool for the last 10 minutes; (B) use smaller curlers; (C) leave your rollers in for an hour longer.

6. If your skin is extra dry: (A) don't bathe, take a shower; (B) use special lubricating bath oil or lotions in your tub; (C) bathe in very soapy water as often as possible.

7. If your hair is very dry: (A) treat it with conditioner and massage your scalp; (B) wash it frequently; (C) use hair spray.

8. A facial mask will: (A) stimulate circulation; (B) eliminate blemishes; (C) remove wrinkles.

9. Permanent wrinkles can result from: (A) wearing a heavy hairpiece; (B) the wrong glasses; (C) frowning constantly.

10. Colorfast shampoo: (A) will change your hair a few shades lighter; (B) is specially made for tinting hair a darker shade; (C) is specially formulated for hair that has been tinted.

The correct answers are:

1. (A) Although it does take some food-watching, too.

2. (B) Proper brushing and sensible cleanliness insure healthy hair.

3. (C) Sleep is the secret elixir for beautiful eyes.

4. (C) Green-toned makeup cancels out ruddiness.

5. (A) Tests prove that this cooling-off period helps retain your set longer.

6. (B) Special oils in your tub leave a soothing film on your skin. Follow up by applying lotion.

7. (A) A good conditioner and frequent massage will help correct dry hair, as will a monthly oil treatment. Remember, too, that natural drying is preferable to using a dryer.

8. A good mask, that sets while you're in the "feet up-head down" beauty angle position, helps tighten the pores and improves circulation and appearance by increasing the flow of blood to the face.

9. (C) Although squinting can cause permanent wrinkles, the biggest offender is constant frowning. Try to relax your face periodically... facial muscles need varied exercise.

10. (C) Tinted hair preserves its natural looking color when specially prepared colorfast shampoos are used.

If you got 9 out of 10 right, THE NEW YOU is nobody's fool when it comes to beauty. A score of 6 to 8 indicates that you're willing and eager to learn the game; but if you only answered 5 or less correctly, you will need some cramming.

JUST FOR YOU: When you're buying cosmetics, don't let the salesgirl play an April Fool's joke on you. The simple rule of thumb is "when in doubt, do without"... at least until you're sure of what you need and what you don't.

Package 'Magician' Makes Tasty Sauces

By Penny Saver

Two of my friends confessed over the dinner table the other day that neither of them could make a successful gravy. I couldn't believe my ears. I looked at my half-finished dinner plate, and I'm sure my eyes weren't deceiving me — there was gravy there. My taste-buds were surely functioning — it seemed delicious. Personally, I'm not a strong believer in hocus-pocus that produces anything more than a rabbit from a hat, but I was convinced that one of my friends must have had a magic wand hidden somewhere in the kitchen.

Their secret, I discovered, is a handy package of instant gravy. All you do is add water, stir it to a boil and presto! The gravy has the flavor of a sauce pampered for hours in a chef's kitchen until it is ready to serve.

You have your choice of deep brown gravy or one with succulent mushrooms for extra accent. Price per package is 25 cents. The spices are added to these mixes, so you needn't worry about a thing.

It seems that more than just two of my friends have trouble making sauces. Another has a dreadful time preparing cheese and cream sauces for vegetables. In one shop, I found a "magic wand" for her — it's a package sauce mix that's perfect with broccoli, asparagus, cauliflower, green beans and potatoes. Empty the contents of the Cheddar cheese mix, priced at 25 cents, into a saucepan. Add one cup of milk and bring to a boil. Let it bubble for a minute while you stir. Sound simple? The result is delicious.

This topper makes a taste-bud tempting macaroni and cheese dish as well. Prepare the sauce in the same way and add it to two cups of hot, cooked noodles.

Next time that fish is on your menu, serve it with tangy lemon sauce. This is bound to have your family raving about the tingling flavor. Prepare this the same way as the cheese variety. Price of the packaged ingredients is also 25 cents.

Top your family's favorite dishes with these sauces. Give me a call at 382-3131 if you want to know where to find them.

School Integration Defied by Alabama

MRS. WALLACE

Support of Other States Sought by Mrs. Wallace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Governor Lurleen Wallace confronted United States authorities today with defiance of a new school integration order and vowed, "whatever need be done will be done".

She urged a cheering Alabama legislature to hand down a "cease-and-desist" ultimatum to a three-judge federal court which said nine days ago all public schools in the state, including their faculties, must be desegregated by next September.

And she asked the legislature, in a speech Thursday night, to vest her with authority to take over the schools now held by the state school superintendent so she can refuse to carry out the court order.

She said it may be necessary to employ more state police "in order that the children of our state be protected."

She asked legislators to consider appropriating funds to pay additional state police.

APPLAUD 20 TIMES

She was interrupted by applause 20 times during her 30-minute speech in the chamber where 106 years ago Alabama seceded from the union at the outset of the civil war.

Mrs. Wallace solicited the support of other southern states in resisting the desegregation order, but promised, "If we stand alone, we will go alone."

Paraphrasing President Andrew Jackson's defiance of a Supreme Court mandate a century ago, she said of the three judges who issued the integration order, "They have made their decree. Now let them enforce it."

Alabama is appealing the order to the Supreme Court.

There was little indication of opposition from the legislators. The lone Republican member, Senator Leland Childs of Birmingham, said he is "100 per cent for" the governor's promised clash with federal authorities and added, "If it takes going to jail, then I'll go to jail for it."

REMAINS SILENT

Similar comment came from other members. But the state school superintendent, Ernest Stone, designated by the court as the man responsible for seeing that the desegregation decree is carried out, remained silent. Stone sat nearby as Mrs. Wallace spoke.

Her husband, former Governor George Wallace, watched on a TV set in her office downstairs.

No immediate action was taken by the legislature to translate the governor's words into law before they adjourned for a weekend recess.

In Georgia, another of the six southern states effected by court orders on school integration, Governor Lester Maddox also promised to fight the guidelines with "every legal move we can."

Appeal Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vernon Shiminowsky, a member of the city's parking meter collection staff, Thursday lost his appeal against a conviction for attempting to steal $12.26 from meters.

Shiminowsky was given a suspended sentence after police testified the collector put some coins in his pocket when emptying meters.

TOMMY DOUGLAS UNOPPOSED AT NOMINATION MEETING

VANCOUVER (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national New Democratic Party leader, was nominated unopposed Thursday night to represent the NDP in the new riding of Burnaby-Seymour in the next federal election.

Mr. Douglas now represents Burnaby-Coquitlam, Burnaby-Seymour is one of five ridings carved out of three larger ones by redistribution.

Car Dealer Stretches Hearing's Credulity

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of a Vancouver automobile company said Thursday the private conversations of his customers buying cars would be of no advantage to his salesman.

Weldon McFarlane, testifying before the royal commission on privacy, said an intercom system in his company's showrooms was installed for the purpose of training salesmen.

McFarlane said his company, Zephyr Motors Ltd., requires a car buyer to state in writing information indicating his ability to pay for a vehicle.

Therefore, he said, there is no advantage in hearing a private conversation over the system, which was discovered by Sun reporter Moira Farrow and photographer Ken Oakes last January.

Commission counsel George Murray commented: "I find it rather astounding that you (McFarlane) consider this information that might be overheard, of no use at all."

Commissioner R. A. Sargent, a retired county court judge, said: "I tell you frankly I find it hard to believe."

Fraud Charge Unfounded, Say Probers

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Dupuy, commissioner general for Expo 67, said Thursday a provincial police investigation has discovered no foundation for any allegations of fraud in Logexpo, the fair's lodging service.

Speaking at a press conference, he said he has been told this by J. Adrien Robert, director of the Quebec Provincial Police.

He read out a statement by Mr. Robert which said: "Our investigators, in spite of a lengthy investigation, have been unable to discover any founded charges of fraud or gross negligence on the part of those involved in Logexpo."

MANITOBA GOING FOR SALES TAX

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government won approval in principle Thursday of a bill to levy a 5 per cent retail sales tax.

The legislation, which will allow Manitoba to become the ninth province to impose a sales tax, won second reading in a 29 to 25 vote with all opposition parties against the measure. Alberta will be the only province without a sales tax.

Clause-by-clause study of the bill by a committee of the whole house is expected to follow next week in preparation for third reading to allow implementation of the tax on June 1.

Transfusion Hearing Put Over

VANCOUVER (CP) — The case of a young Jehovah's Witness, who needs a major operation but refuses blood transfusions, has been adjourned to April 6.

The unique hearing began Wednesday before family court judge Earl Vance in closed session.

It involves Miriam Myllyniemi, 14, of Port Moody. The girl is in the custody of the Children's Aid Society, which will allow the transfusions. But Miriam's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Myllyniemi, brought about the family court hearing by challenging the society's right to take over her daughter's custody.

He Bites Less Lately

was the possible penalty but the pup got probation.

Delinquent dog Cheeko, an accused Jack the Ripper, got his break from Magistrate Ian Dublinski, who, under a section of the Winnipeg city charter, had been asked to rule on a licence bureau application for Cheeko's destruction.

New charges against Cheeko — his record goes back to early puppyhood — were that the 15-month-old tan mongrel collie had bitten two small children and an elderly man. But six months have passed since the latest offences, so the magistrate decided to give Cheeko "another chance. He placed him on remand until May 31 when a report will be made on his progress."

Cheeko wasn't in court but his owners, Mr. and Mrs. William Young, gave character references and he was defended eloquently by counsel Manly Rusen.

More Newscasters Ignore TV Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Two more well-known NBC newscasters, Ray Scherer and Morgan Beatty, have joined Chet Huntley and Frank McGee in going on the air despite a strike by the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

But in Washington, state department sources said State Secretary Dean Rusk will not appear on NBC's international Meet the Press program Sunday if the strike by the 18,000 member union is still on against the major U.S. TV and radio networks.

Negotiators for the networks and the union have been summoned to Washington Saturday for mediation talk in an effort to settle the walkout, now in its third day. The union struck NBC, CBS, ABC and the Mutual Broadcasting System Wednesday.

The strike is over wages and commercial fees.

POLICE COURT CASES

Authorities Taking Steps To Clear Sooke Man's Name

A Sooke man who befriended an American last fall now finds himself $440 poorer and familarly with a "criminal record."

The good samaritan was robbed of the money and some clothing a few days after he took Roy Elton Hanna, 43, of no fixed address, into his home last fall.

Hanna, who earlier pleaded guilty to the theft charge, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary when he appeared in Sooke court Thursday.

The accused has a lengthy criminal record, court was told. He was returned to the local court to face the theft charge after spending 45 days in a Prince Albert, Sask., jail for false pretences, Sooke RCMP said Thursday.

It was there that he was convicted and served his time in the name of the man he robbed in Sooke. His correct identification was uncovered by police laboratory analysis of his signatures on worthless cheques.

Hanna was also given three-month concurrent sentences on three counts of false pretences Thursday, one of them involving a worthless $25 cheque he cashed at a Sooke store.

Police said a deportation order awaits Hanna's release.

Field Day For UFO Watchers

Flying objects appeared in Victoria skies Thursday night almost faster than watchers could report them.

One sighted at 7:30 p.m. near Mayfair shopping centre was described as "a peculiar light in the sky," travelling south at about 30 mph.

Pranksters using large plastic bags inflated by heat from candles have been blamed for several of the sightings.

"But this wasn't Venus and it wasn't birthday candles," said the observer, who viewed the object or one like it again at 9 p.m. from Mt. Tolmie.

The UFO was described as a bright orange, travelling below the clouds, and could be seen to dim and brighten several times through a telescope.

A multi-colored object was also seen flying in circles near Mt. Tolmie at 8 p.m.

The observer who watched it appear from the west with its lights glowing steadily, asked "How could they get red, green and yellow lights just from candles?"

VIEW STARS SATURDAY

The Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain opens to the public Saturday from 8 to 10 p.m.

The public observation periods in the observatory continue each Saturday until the end of November.

The observatory road, but not the observatory, will be open Saturdays and Sundays from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Pipeline Building Jump Seen

"Big inch" pipeline construction in Canada this year should hit 1,000 miles for an increase of 60 per cent over 1966, pipeline contractors were told Thursday.

Robert P. Sharman, president of Pipeline Contractors Association of Canada spoke at the opening session of the organization's 13th annual meeting, at the Empress Hotel.

He said 1966 was "a bad year for our industry." But his forecast for improvement was based on existing projects, those which have gone to contractors and those in the predictable future, as well as on influencing factors.

The 60 per cent increase would mean 850 miles of pipeline over 20 inches in diameter, with the remainder including smaller diameter pipe for gathering systems in oil and gas fields, Mr. Sharman said.

Contractors consider any line over 12 inches diameter a "big inch" pipeline.

Volume will build to meet market demands, despite the problem of supplying eastern Canadian markets through looping pipelines across part of the U.S.

TOUGH JOB

Mr. Sharman said two of the most interesting and toughest jobs upcoming are B.C. projects.

These are the 430-mile line for Pacific Northern Gas Ltd. between Prince George and Prince Rupert including extension to Kitimat, and an 87-mile line for gas transmission across the Kootenay mountain ranges by Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd. Both are 12-inch pipelines.

Supporting the projected growth of market areas, Mr. Sharman gave figures showing that Canadians are larger per capita consumers of petroleum products than Americans, using 750 gallons compared with 741 gallons per year.

Canadian production of crude and natural gas liquids exceeded the one million barrels per day mark last year, the president said.

Exports are expected to climb about 13 per cent, he added, and domestic consumption of gas is climbing at a rate of about 10 per cent a year.

The industry needs both skilled and unskilled workers, and contractors must plan for a recruitment program, he said.

Sheet Metal Men Settle for 42c

New agreements have been reached between 27 employers in the Victoria area and Local 276 of the Sheet Metal Workers International Association.

They provide for a wage increase of 42 cents an hour over three years, starting April 1, 1966.

Other benefits include statutory holidays, improved welfare plan and car mileage allowance of 12 cents a mile.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book from a Hammond Atlas or Globe Encyclopedia, and of the second question...

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Mike Underwood, age 12, of Huntsville, Alabama, for his question:

How many cells are in a man's body?

About six million cells are crowded together in one square inch of human skin. If the skin covering the body of an average sized man could be spread out flat, it would cover a rug one yard wide and two yards long. This is a total of 2,592 square inches of skin, each with an average quota of six million cells. In a drop of human blood, there are more than five million floating cells. The average man has about five quarts of blood. It contains a total of about 25 trillion red cells, 1 1/2 billion platelets and some 35 billion assorted white cells.

The average weight of a man's brain is about three pounds. It is lined to about five ounces of nerve cells that spread throughout the body. The brain and its nervous system contain about 10 billion cells. Blood cells and nerve cells perform very different duties. But the body needs dozens of cells to work together as a living organism. The billions of liver cells are different from the billions of lung cells. A man has more than 600 muscles made of special muscle cells. His body is supported by a skeleton of 206 separate bones, and each bone is built from stacks of special hard-walled cells.

The entire human body is built from cells too small for the human eye to see. Most scientists measure them in micron units — which come 25,000 to an inch. It would, of course, be impossible to count the total cells in a man's body, one by one. But it is possible to estimate the total number. The cells in a small sample of an organ can be counted and the number multiplied by the size of the entire organ. For example, you would find six million cells in a square inch of skin. The total number of skin cells would be this number multiplied by the total area of skin, which is about 18 square feet. The same estimating job can be done with the liver, the muscles, the intestines and every other part of the body.

Cells Wear Out

Most of these cells, remember, are busy laboratories of chemical activity. Most of them wear out and are replaced by new ones. Certain intestine cells work themselves to death in about 36 hours. A white blood cell is replaced with a new one after 12 days, a red cell has a life expectancy of three to four months.

Nerve cells, however, are built to last a century. They cannot be replaced and they work as hard or harder than any other type of cell in the body. The fiber of one nerve cell may be six feet long, reaching all the way from the toes to the brain. It may be in contact with 25,000 other nerve cells. It can pulse signals at 200 miles an hour and the entire nervous system can cope with 36 trillion impulses a day. Yet a lifetime of this busy communication work does not wear out the body's durable nerve cells.

IT HAPPENED IN CANADA...

THE FIRST ICE AGE REFRIGERATED CANADA 500,000 YEARS AGO. SINCE THEN GLACIERS HAVE ADVANCED AND RETREATED MANY TIMES. EACH TIME THE GIANT ICE SHEETS, OFTEN 4,000 FT THICK, HAVE CHANGED THE FACE OF CANADA, OBLITERATING TREES AND VEGETATION, SCULPTURING THE FINAL SCENE. AT LANDS END THEY SHEARED OFF IN MENACING, GLASSY CLIFFS, THEN CRASHED PIECE BY PIECE INTO OPEN WATER IN GIANT ICEBERGS.

THE LAST GREAT ICE CAP TO COVER CANADA BEGAN ITS LAST SHORTRAGE ABOUT 20,000 YEARS AGO AND IS STILL RECEEDING.

TEMPERATURE DURING THIS ICE AGE? NOT TOO BAD! GEOLOGISTS SAY THE AVERAGE TEMPERATURE WAS ABOUT 15 DEGREES COOLER THAN NOW.

ONE OF THE BIG THINGS THAT HAPPENED IN CANADA WAS THE STEAM LOCOMOTIVE WITH ITS NEVER-TO-BE-FORGOTTEN WHISTLE. AS IT ROARED IN FROM THE ATLANTIC, CRASHED THE PRAIRIES OR CLIMBED THE ROCKIES.

Detecting Small Stroke

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

An elderly man, a very able lawyer, came in just now to tell me that recently, while reading, he suddenly lost a 11 contact with time, so that he had to think for a minute what time of day it was. As he said, his doctor hooted at the idea that he had had a little stroke, but the lawyer, a good observer, says he never had such an experience before in his life, and his impression is strong that he was unconscious for a minute much as if he had had a spell of petit mal (the minor type of epilepsy).

I see no reason to disbelieve what the man says, and seeing that there is no epilepsy in his family, and his electroencephalograms (records of the tiny electric currents always running in the brain) are normal, it is not at all likely that what he had was a brief epileptic spell without a convulsion.

I have had a number of epileptic people without seizures tell me that every so often the electric fan in their room or in their hairdryer seems for a second to quit whirling — but they know that it must have been their brain that, for a moment, quite functioning.

Recently, I had a very intelligent man chatting with me in my office for a half hour. When he rose to go, he found one leg so completely paralyzed that he fell over against a bookcase. Fortunately, in a few minutes his leg functioned perfectly again, and he was able to set out for home. What seemed to me so remarkable was that when the little stroke paralyzed his leg he felt nothing, and his speech went on uninterrupted. I saw no change in him during our chat.

I was not much surprised at this experience because several able physicians have told me that when they had a big stroke with paralysis of an arm and leg they felt no discomfort.

In my recently published book on "Little Strokes," I tell of dozens of people who have told me of brief puzzling episodes which could hardly have been anything else but little strokes. In most cases the patient was satisfied he had had a little stroke, but his doctors were not, because so many of us in medicine stroke is a dirty word which must never be used, if only because it could offend or shame the patient or his family.

Village In Miniature Their Goal

If a service club executive has his way, Colwood area merchants will be expanding this summer.

But in a very little way.

South Van Isle Lions Club president Vernon Foord hopes local merchants will take over lots on the streets of a Tom Thumb village for junior drivers opening at Colwood centennial grounds July 1.

"They can put up miniatures of their own stores, complete with their names and neon lights," said Mr. Foord.

"The more realistic the route, the more the youngsters will realize the distractions a driver has to cope with."

Young drivers can manoeuvre 11 model cars along roads painted on a fenced area of 80 feet by 100 feet.

Children aged seven to 11 will be able to use the facilities.

The South Van Isle Lions $5,000 project will be the first completed unit of the proposed recreational complex on the former race track property.

An Olympic-sized swimming pool will not be completed until the fall.

QUEBEC VOTING

Columnist Didn't Jump the Track

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Friends who waved me to a stop as I was grocery shopping yesterday morning were strong in their belief that I had "jumped the tracks" in my assertion on Wednesday that Quebec women had the vote at the beginning of the last century.

"You're wrong," said one with a determined thump of his cane. "You're so wrong!"

"We lived in Montreal for over 30 years," his wife added, "and we never heard even a whisper that the women of Quebec had the vote back in those days."

Whisper or not, it's true.

You see, the Quebec Constitution Act of 1791 defined voters only as "persons." Voting in those days was oral. You were merely asked for whom you wished to vote and you answered with the name of your favorite candidate. And there is evidence that some Quebec women did vote under those conditions between 1809 and 1834.

There is nothing to say they voted after that time and legislation passed in 1849 made it impossible for them to vote orally or to make their cross for the candidate of their choice again for nearly a century.

Quebec, you must remember, had a different background to the other provinces.

Public opinion was completely against women taking an interest in anything outside the home. Girls, especially in rural districts, married young. Their families were large and, as mothers, they had their hands full. Such education as there was in those early days and indeed, well into the present century, was mainly for boys and men.

Only as educational opportunities became available, especially in the cities, did women see the need for better laws for themselves and for their children. Until then they were content to let their menfolk run their world.

It was the educated women, both French and English speaking, who fought persistently to get decent working conditions in factories for their sex and compulsory education for girls as well as boys.

They didn't win either of these reforms until 1943. The women's suffrage movement, unlike the prairie provinces, was entirely a city movement, centred in Montreal. Farm women were hard to convince.

In 1937, Mme. Pierre Casgrain headed a group that raised $20,000 to be used for promotion in country newspapers, on rural radio programs and for publication of pamphlets telling the purpose of this league for all women, regardless of race, creed or political party.

The following year, Mme. Casgrain addressed the annual meeting of the women's institutes of Quebec and gained their support for the cause.

On April 25, 1940, just about 27 years ago, Quebec women won the vote.

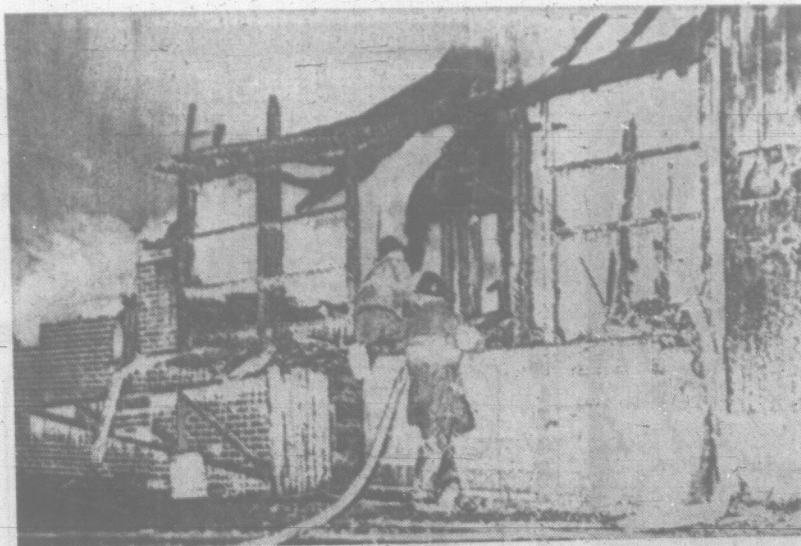

Something that may interest you in the federal women's franchise field, is the controversial War Times Election Act, passed by the Canadian government on September 20, 1917.

It granted the wife, widow, mother, sister or daughter of any male subject serving in the armed forces of Canada or Great Britain, who was a British subject and 21 years of age, the right to vote at the next federal election.

Cabinet ministers and members of parliament who had fought hard to exclude women from the federal franchise, voted in favor of this measure.

Their reason? A crucial election was up ahead. They needed all the votes they could get. So they turned to making speeches on the necessity of women voting and the Act was passed.

It was a very unfair measure. The whole country was infuriated. Following the election, the new government altered the Act immediately and all women in Canada were given the federal vote on May 24, 1918.

180 Evacuate Hotels as Fire Destroys Wing of Banff Resort

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — A fire which destroyed a section of the largest and oldest hotel in this Alberta resort community was reported under control more than six hours after it broke out.

Some 100 guests were evacuated from the Mount Royal Hotel, and about 80 from the King Edward Hotel across the street.

First reports had indicated the fire was threatening adjacent buildings, but firemen poured water on all buildings within a half-block radius.

The downtown business block where the hotel is located forms a major portion of Banff's downtown area.

The fire destroyed the Mount Royal's three-storey, 40-unit older frame wing. A fire wall kept it from spreading far into a newer brick portion. No one was reported injured and no damage estimate was available.

Witnesses say the fire broke out about 9 p.m. in the kitchen and dining room area of the fashionable hotel.

Gordon Lock, manager of the King Edward, said heat from the fire broke windows in his hotel and in other buildings nearby.

The Mount Royal is located in the heart of Banff, a year-round mountain resort in Banff National Park, some 90 miles west of Calgary.

'CHARGES NOT PLEASANT'

Pearson Shrugs Off Pacifist Charges of Viet Genocide

By PETE LOUDON, Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Prime Minister Pearson today appeared unmoved by peace demonstrations denouncing Canada's alleged involvement in the Vietnam war.

"I think our bluntness and frankness should be limited to confidential discussions rather than public statements," he said.

He was speaking at a press conference here following an unfriendly welcome at Vancouver airport Thursday by pacifist demonstrators. Their signs accused him of being an accomplice in genocide.

"I don't appreciate being accused of killing babies every day."

In the U.S., he said, people accuse him of not showing enough support to the U.S. war in Vietnam.

The prime minister said some of the placards carried by peace demonstrators don't make much sense. They accused him of supplying arms to be used in Vietnam.

He said Canada has a defence-sharing agreement with the U.S. as part of the NATO alliance. This would have to be scrapped if none of the war supply exchange material could go to Vietnam.

In any event what Canada supplies the U.S. "is not the type of equipment they are using there."

"If we put strings on it, it would end the alliance," he said.

On Thursday he said persons protesting the death of children in Vietnam should make their complaints to the U.S. government.

An RCMP spokesman said before the press conference that anti-U.S. war groups were planning a major peace demonstration in the vicinity of the Hotel Vancouver tonight. The Liberal party will hold a banquet there for the prime minister.

Some reporters entering the press conference were questioned by police, and they said U.S. secret service would take over security when the prime minister leaves for Santa Barbara, Calif., Sunday.

He will speak at a university convocation ceremony there and receive an honorary degree.

Questioned on the security measures, the prime minister said, "I have noticed a good many security people and I'm grateful for their attention." He didn't know if security was tighter than usual.

Mr. Pearson was closely questioned on federal participation in Vancouver harbor development plans and assistance in construction of a third harbor crossing here.

He said he had received a telegram from Premier Bennett, saying a formula for provision of a bridge had been worked out with Mayor Tom Campbell of Vancouver (some estimates put the cost at $100 million).

The prime minister said Premier Bennett recommended its acceptance to the federal government.

"That's not an invitation to participate in talks," said Mr. Pearson.

He repeated several times that the new crossing is "primarily a provincial responsibility" but there was some justification for federal participation.

Nurses Threaten Mass Resignation In Pay Dispute

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — More than 450 nurses employed in Lower Mainland provincial mental hospitals voted Thursday night to resign June 1 unless the government establishes an impartial arbitration board to consider their demand for a 25 per cent pay increase.

At two mass meetings here, the nurses voted to hand in their resignations April 28, effective June 1.

"This could be very serious indeed," said Dr. B. F. Bryson, superintendent of the 3,000-patient Riverview Hospital.

"I have to take a neutral stand, but I am certainly sympathetic to the nurses on staff who are not paid in relation to other types of work. They should be paid according to their experience and training."

Mrs. Fay Hartford of Surrey, secretary of the Psychiatric Nurses Association, said the starting salary for psychiatric nurses is $362 a month, rising to $432 in six years.

The 456 nurses who voted to resign represent half the nursing staff in Lower Mainland mental institutions. A further 450, unable to attend two Thursday meetings, will be approached individually.

Nurses from Vernon and Kamloops will meet today in Kamloops. There are 1,150 nurses in seven government mental hospitals. They have rejected government offers of from five to seven per cent.

The mass rallies Thursday took place after a delegation of nursing representatives flew back from Victoria to announce there were still no further developments in their bid for an arbitration board.

The meetings were told the government had been given until March 29 to give an answer on the arbitration board controversy.

Not only had there been no decision, said officials, but there had not even been an answer. "We are no longer going to be treated like children," said Dwight Wenham, executive secretary of the Psychiatric Nurses Association.

Nine Vancouver Islanders are in the running for the Irish Sweepstakes grand prize of $150,000.

Of the 278 Canadians whose tickets were drawn on horses today, four are from Victoria, two from Ladysmith, two from Port Alberni and one from Campbell River.

Holders of tickets on the winner will each receive $150,000, with prizes of $50,000 and $30,000 for holders of tickets on the second and third finishers.

All those who have drawn horses will get about $1,300, which goes to those with non-starters or horses which finish out of the money. The actual amount is based on the total amount in the pool.

The draw is the first of three held each year in the international lottery set up to aid hospitals in the Irish Republic.

New Tory Whip

SASKATOON (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today that Reynolds Ray (PC — Humboldt-Melford-Tisdale) will take over as Conservative party whip in the House of Commons.

... governor-general?

Michener Hinted As Viceroy

NEW DELHI (AP) — Indian protocol officials said today they have been told unofficially that Canadian high commissioner Roland Michener may have to leave India "on short notice" to accept an appointment as Governor-General of Canada.

They said they were told of this "likelihood" at a diplomatic reception Thursday night.

Michener was still in New Delhi today and a high commission spokesman said "we have no indication he will be leaving in the next three or four days."

But informed diplomatic sources said "there was a strong possibility" he would be named to succeed Governor-General Georges P. Vanier who died March 5.

Michener has been high commissioner to India since September, 1964.

In Ottawa, political observers said it seemed certain that Prime Minister Pearson will announce the name of Canada's new Governor-General next Tuesday in the Commons.

Most speculation there has been that the choice is Michener, a former Conservative MP and former Commons speaker.

However, Michener, 67 next April 19, told The Associated Press today that the rumors "are just speculation" and that he could not comment further on the matter.

Burly Soviet Defence Chief Dies At 68

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Defence Minister Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky has died, Tass reported today.

Malinovsky, 68, was reported to have been stricken by cancer. The Second World War leader of Soviet troops who stormed into Berlin has been ill for months.

The burly, gruff-voiced soldier had been noted in recent years for his tough speeches delivered from Lenin's tomb at May Day and Bolshevik Revolution anniversary parades through Red Square.

Speaking with an expression on his face that many observers compared with that of a bulldog, he castigated U.S. policy in Vietnam and West German policy in some of the strongest terms heard here.

Defence minister since 1957, he presided over the modernization of the Soviet armed forces with nuclear missiles and more recently with new ground-warfare equipment and an anti-ballistic missile defence system still under construction.

ESQUIMALT HIT-RUN

Man Surrenders In Child Death

By DON VIFOND

A 21-year-old View Royal man turned himself in to police today following the hit-and-run death of an 11-year-old girl Thursday night.

Geraldine Melinda Jones, one of nine children of a Port Renfrew widow, died alongside Craigflower Road after being tossed 35 feet by a car which kept on going.

She and her sister Yvonne, 15, had been walking with their backs to the traffic about 250 yards east of Admirals Road.

Yvonne told Colwood RCMP officers that the car which struck her sister about 10:20 p.m. neither slowed down nor sped up as it continued east on Craigflower.

Police said two people in the area heard the thud of the collision, one of them a man waiting to cross the intersection several hundred feet to the west.

TRAIN RESCUES TEENAGERS

Police were close on the trail of the hit-and-run driver when a man walked in to the Colwood RCMP office just before noon.

Officers initially withheld the description of the car Yvonne gave them pending an intense search for it this morning. One officer said the description would only fit a few vehicles and publicizing it would unjustly point the finger at owners of similar autos.

Analysis of broken glass from a headlight at the accident scene enabled officers to pin down the make and year of car involved.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said this morning an inquest into the death will open Monday night at whatever funeral home the family chooses. A post mortem examination was conducted this afternoon, the coroner said.

William James Taylor, 19, of Winnipeg, was killed when his car collided with a semi-trailer truck near Maple Creek, about 80 miles southwest of Swift Current.

RCMP said it was snowing heavily at the time. Prince Albert was just on the fringe south of the city were struck. Winds at Prince Albert reached 55 m.p.h. but less than two inches of snow fell.

Bus schedules to points south of Prince Albert were cancelled and buses to other areas were delayed several hours.

The Prince Albert peewee all-star hockey team, travelling in several cars to Weyburn, was forced to stop at Watrous. One car was missing all night, but the boys were located in Simpson today.

First Hydro Raise Since B.C. Takeover

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Electricity rates went up a half-cent per kilowatt-hour today following a steady series of rate cuts since B.C. Hydro became publicly owned six years ago.

It will mean up to $1.50 per month added to domestic consumers' bills.

The increase will bring $7 million more into Hydro's treasury in the 1967-68 fiscal year, still leaving Hydro customers better off than they were before the takeover, the utility company said.

Instead of a $30 million a year saving as a result of the progressive rate cuts, the public will be saving $23 million, chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said.

RISE IN COSTS

Hydro said the increase was necessary to help cover rising operating costs, which increased $13.7 million between April 1966 and the end of February this year.

The new rate, which will be applied to the first 300 kilowatt-hours.

Ex-Socred Candidate Holds Up Bank

Mainland Man Pleads Guilty

BURNABY (CP) — Stanley Desmond Kermee, 56, who was remanded to April 14, Thursday, when he pleaded guilty to bank robbery, was a prominent New Westminster businessman and once a Social Credit candidate.

Kermee was arrested following a $2,027 holdup of a Bank of Montreal branch Thursday, and four hours later pleaded guilty to the charge in magistrate's court to "get it over with."

PILKED

He told the magistrate he desperately needed money because he had been the victim of a confidence man who left him holding $1,200 worth of bad cheques.

Kermee is owner-operator of a New Westminster storage locker company, ran as a Social Credit candidate in the 1960 provincial election when he was defeated by 461 votes and was once president of the Royal Columbian Hospital in New Westminster.

He was former president of the New Westminster Social Credit constituency organization and also ran in the 1956 provincial election. He was defeated both times by Rae Eddie of the New Democratic Party.

USED NOTE

The court was told Kermee pushed a note demanding money at a teller, showed a gun and then ran from the bank when a bank employee yelled there was a holdup.

He was chased by the employees and a customer, wrestled back to the bank and locked inside a safety deposit vault while police were called.

Police said they found the gun was a toy when they demanded it be thrown from the vault before they moved in to make the arrest.

U.S. Railway Strike Set At Midnight

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — A nationwide U.S. railway strike is still set for 12:01 a.m. local time Saturday, the head of the Order of Railroad Conductors and Brakemen said today.

President Clyde F. Lane denied reports that the walkout of some 18,500 union members had been called off.

The strike would tie up about 65 per cent of U.S. railways. Rail officials have threatened a court action to halt the walkout.

The ORCB called the strike on grounds the railways are cutting insurance coverage as of Saturday in violation of the Railway Labor Act.

A strike by the ORCB would hit most major U.S. rail lines.

BUS DRIVER GETS $10 TIP AND ONE THOUSAND THANKS

OTTAWA (CP) — Doreen Goodman gave a bus driver what she thought was a $2 bill Thursday night. A few hours later she discovered that a $1,000 bill given her by her father as a gift was missing from her purse.

Bus driver Fernand Leclair obligingly checked through his cash and turned up the missing bill. "I started shaking when I realized what it was," he said.

The $2 and $1,000 banknotes are similar in color. Miss Goodman gave him $10, plus the $2 replacement.

WORST STORM OF YEAR

Foot-High Snowfall Snarls Saskatchewan Traffic

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Saskatchewan residents dug themselves out today after the worst storm of the winter dumped up to 13 inches of snow on the province in two days.

Saskatoon weather officials reported 10.6 inches Thursday after a Wednesday total of more than two inches.

Fanned by winds gusting 40 to 45 miles an hour, the snowfall was the largest in the city since 1962 when 12 inches fell.

Visibility in many parts of the province was about half a mile.

Dozens of motorists were stranded as highways ploughed throughout the province. Three teenagers, including two daughters of George Leith, Liberal MLA for Elrose, were jammed in a phone booth on Saskatoon's outskirts for six hours Thursday after they stepped from a train and could not be reached.

The sisters and Michèle Proby, a friend from British Columbia, finally flagged down another train at 11 p.m.

The Saskatoon city transit system cut service well before midnight Thursday and spent many hours attempting to return stranded units to the garage.

Air Canada said planes had no difficulty landing at Saskatoon Airport during the blizzard, marked by temperatures of about 15 above. Four massive snowblowers worked through the night on runways.

The eastbound CNR Paro Rama crept into Saskatoon nearly six hours late and the westbound Supercontinental was delayed more than two hours.

Home deliveries of milk and bread were cancelled. Officials said extra milk would be left at stores to protect against a possible long siege.

Officials reported a concentration of stranded cars and people in the Hepburn and Leslie districts.

In Saskatoon, many large stores were closed but smaller ones remained open. Banks remained open but reported up to half their employees absent.

Work at the Polish Co. of America, mine near Saskatoon was carried on by men working double shifts. Most other mines shut down.

Only one fatality was reported despite dozens of accidents.

William James Taylor, 19, of Winnipeg, was killed when his car collided with a semi-trailer truck near Maple Creek, about 80 miles southwest of Swift Current.

RCMP said it was snowing heavily at the time. Prince Albert was just on the fringe south of the city were struck. Winds at Prince Albert reached 55 m.p.h. but less than two inches of snow fell.

The Prince Albert peewee all-star hockey team, travelling in several cars to Weyburn, was forced to stop at Watrous. One car was missing all night, but the boys were located in Simpson today.

All I kin say is: we better git used t' bein' told about power rate increases.

Scuffin' through th' blossom petals, it's hard t' realize other folks use snow as a substitute.

For some TV programs, no news is good news.

Arthur Mayse

Most of us consider birthdays a time for getting rather than giving. Today, let me present Abraham Gowler, a Victoria-dweller who, to mark his ninety-second anniversary, and as his own Centennial project, has reversed the process.

Mr. Gowler has been giving... and I am honored to be among the numerous recipients of his bounty.

Now, with a "Many happy returns" no less hearty for coming two days late, I will let this other adoptive son of our city speak for himself in a few lines lifted from the paper of verses that accompanies his gifts.

"This is, as you know, our Centennial Year. A time to remember, to thank and to cheer. And you are aware that there's nary a doubt That I have had much to be cheerful about. For over fourscore years I have lived and dined Blest with a strong body and fairly good mind—I have hearing and sight and can swallow my chow, I've a bit laid by which I shall use NOW And for my Centennial Project I plan To share some of it at once with my kind fellowman (And organizations that do a good work), Including some saints I have met at the Kirk. As for my own crisp and crackly gift, it has gone to a blue-bonneted lady called Sally Ann, an old friend who will put it to the best possible use."

Next dip into the mail brings up a letter from ex-Montrealer R. Shaw, who terms himself a visitor to Victoria and feels I dealt unfairly with Quebec and Montreal a while back.

"Perhaps among the Victorians we have met here while visiting your city this winter," Mr. Shaw writes, "there have been too many with still-existing ties to Eastern Canada from where they came but all of them are genuinely interested in Montreal's World Festival. Among our tradespeople we have found the same interest—many of them planning to go to the Exposition. We have met none who are 'waiting to see.'"

"Granted, the eight per cent sales tax is a shocker. But every resident consumer in the province will suffer—not only tourists. And it will doom border town trade."

"Wasn't it simply human nature that some landlords would try that lease eviction deal? Don't you think it would happen anywhere, even—perish the thought—in your British Columbia? Do you know that a deadline date was set quite some time ago, on and after which no landlord could evict a lease tenant? If you know, why not say so?"

Mr. Shaw has more to say, including richly-deserved praise for Montreal's Mayor Sean Drapeau.

Like him, I hope that for the credit of Canada abroad as well as the pleasure and satisfaction of Canadian Expo visitors, all will now proceed smoothly.

To this end, I trust, there will be no more gouging attempts for Montreal's own La Presse to report, and for LogExpo to take firmly in hand.

And to visitor R. Shaw, no address supplied, a gentle correction. What's preparing down there, I find in biographical notes on R. F. Shaw, deputy commissioner general of Expo, is the Canadian Universal and International Exhibition, Montreal, 1967.

At the start of the week, I mentioned a sailship called the Panther, which lies below tide line off the rocky tip of a little island next door to Salt Spring.

Fast as the mails could fetch it, I got a fat envelope from Salt Spring historian Garnet Young. It contains details about the wrecked clipper which I'll share with you later, and also some information about Salt Spring itself.

I never knew the island was once officially, but briefly, named 'Admiral'. Its stubborn settlers, as Mr. Young puts it, 'scuttled' the Royal Navy's choice.

Steelers Need Backing in Football Bid

By DOUG PEDEN
Sports Editor

Victoria sports fans can have a better brand of professional football this season—if enough of them want it.

Indication of support in the form of pledges for purchase of season's tickets during the next month will probably decide the fate of Victoria Steelers.

Directors of the Victoria team, which performed last year in the Pacific Football

League and has been awarded a franchise in the new Golden West Division of the Continental League, announced after a meeting Thursday night that they are wrestling with these two main problems:

- Making arrangements to pay off obligations from last year's operations.

- Raising the $25,000 performance bond required from the league.

Originally the Steelers were to have paid a $2,500 franchise

fee by March 1 and the performance bond by April 1. "Time is running against us," club president Mike Griffin said today, "and the Steelers are asking other members of the league to give us a one-month period of grace, to May 1."

Today club officials were conducting a telephone poll of other franchise holders to learn if they would be granted an extra month to arrange financing.

"Following the poll vote," said Mr. Griffin, "we will be calling another board meeting, probably Monday."

"At that time the board will probably have to resolve this question:

"Is Victoria ready for pro football and able to support it to the extent of 5,000 per game for seven home games?"

Steelers are planning a budget of $105,000, which includes provision for paying of 1966 debts. They will play home games under lights at Royal Athletic Park with ticket prices ranging from $3 to $4.

Other teams in the division are Seattle, Portland, Eugene, Anaheim, San Jose, Sacramento and Phoenix.

"We feel we have some things going for us this season," Mr. Griffin said. "We will be playing night games and we will be playing in a new park, with better facilities for the fans."

"We are quite confident of support and the directors are convinced that since this is a community effort, people will be advised of the position of the club at all times."

With the Steelers assured of "substantial" player support and playing in a league that is expected to be studded with stars, Victorians appear in line for an interesting football season.

It could all depend on how they support pre-season ticket sales, plans for which will be announced next week.

MIKE GRIFFIN
... asks support

WHAT CHANCE have I got asks Dr. H. D. Middleton, of Victoria? One of 40 skippers taking part in the eighth annual Gulf of Georgia predicted log race Saturday, he might well ask. The man he's talking to is veteran skipper Charles N. Smith, of Burrard Yacht Club, who is entering his 42-foot power-

cruiser Vista Rose (background) for the fifth time. And to help him he has an all-female crew—his wife, daughter Mrs. Don Geggie, granddaughters Leanne Taylor, 7, and Linda Geggie, 1, and the dog Cappe (female of course). (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

SAANICH STUDIES 12-POINT LAW

New Bylaw Will Regulate Private Patrol Agencies

By ROGER STONEBANKS

New controls over private patrol agencies are expected to become law in Saanich shortly.

A 12-point bylaw has been recommended by finance committee and is expected to come before council for initial readings Monday night.

There is no bylaw in this respect at the moment and council has not yet considered the proposed bylaw.

In the past, efforts by at least one private patrol agency to gain a licence to operate in Saanich have been rejected by council.

Three parts of the proposed bylaw are aimed at preventing any confusion between private patrol agencies and police forces.

All written material used by such agencies must state in print not less than six point (slightly smaller than the type in this story) the following statement:

"This agency is privately owned and operated and is not connected in any way whatsoever with any police force."

In addition, no qualification of this statement shall appear in such written material.

Two other sections state:

- No private patrol agency "shall wear, carry or exhibit or suffer to be worn, carried or exhibited and no employee of any private patrol agency shall wear, carry or exhibit any badge or insignia upon any apparel or vehicle or elsewhere upon anything used in the business of such agency which in any way resembles any badge or insignia in use by any police force" operating in the Capital Regional District, which extends from Port Renfrew to Sidney.

- No agency or employee "shall use or wear or suffer or permit his employees to use or wear, in conducting the business of such agency, any uniform, suit, coat or mode of dress being or having the appearance of being a distinguishing uniform which might reasonably be confused with a uniform in use by any police force" in the Capital Regional District.

All agencies carrying on business in Saanich must give the police chief the names, ages, descriptions, addresses and fingerprints of operators and employees as well as "such other information" as the chief may require.

A list of owners and occupants of all premises the agency patrols must be filed with the police chief, plus a supplementary list each month of additions and reductions.

The schedule of rates must also be provided.

No agency may use dogs unless the dogs are securely held at all times on a leash not exceeding 20 feet.

No agency or employee shall solicit business in Saanich before 8 a.m. or after 8 p.m.

Other provisions cover business licences and security by way of cash or bearer bonds.

(A City Hall spokesman said Victoria does not have a bylaw governing private patrol agencies, but they are governed by a provincial law, the Private Detectives Licensing Act. The agencies in Victoria must have municipal business licences.)

Without any break in communications, the familiar radio signals were beamed to their new home on Whiffin Spit.

The changeover marked the first time in 27 years that the Gordon Head station had been silent.

Day and night it has kept in touch with ships at sea, relaying touch-drums messages, listening in for emergency calls assisting in air-sea rescue searches.

Retain Authority to Impose Taxes

One of the claims made by the trustees is that they must retain the authority to impose taxes for school purposes.

"If trustees, through their school boards in their districts are to possess any degree of local control, they must exercise local financial responsibility by having the authority to impose local taxation," the manifesto states.

"They now have this authority through the real property tax and any elimination of this source of revenue would erode the basis for their local control in the field of education," it continues.

"Their responsibility in this field is at best a disguised responsibility," said Mayor Stephen.

"They do indeed impose taxation, but not with the degree of responsibility required by the municipal governments who have to actually raise the money."

"When we send out the tax bill, we are the ones who are held responsible for any increases."

Mayor Stephen said he was not advocating in any way that two tax billing organizations should be established.

"What I am saying is that this whole thing should be lifted from our (municipal) backs and placed on the back of the province," he said.

Mayor Stephen said he had long been an advocate of a standardized approach to education.

"I believe that every child in British Columbia—indeed the ideal would be in Canada—should be able to look for the same standards wherever he may go to school," he said.

school taxation in areas unaffected by municipal taxation.

"That is a very misleading statement," Mayor Stephen said. "It may well be that the municipalities have jurisdiction over only one per cent of the total area of B.C.—but what of the percentage of people?"

"Municipalities have under their jurisdiction between 70 and 80 per cent of the population—and I think that figure may well be higher."

"This, surely, is the comparison we must use if we are to deal in this type of percentage."

Flashers Precede New Traffic Light

Traffic lights will go in to operation at Blenkinsop Road and Cedar Hill Cross Road next week.

To prepare drivers for the change, flashing lights will be installed at the intersection this weekend.

The flashing red light will be on Blenkinsop and the flashing amber on Cedar Hill Cross Road.

Mayor Stephen termed "very misleading" a statement in the manifesto claiming that the municipalities of British Columbia include only one per cent of the area of the province within their jurisdiction.

It further claims that members of the BCSTA embraces virtually the entire province and consequently raise money for

Local Police Won't Apply Law Tonight

A new law empowering police to suspend for 24 hours the licence of borderline impaired drivers becomes effective at midnight tonight.

But local municipal police forces will not apply the controversial roadside suspension legislation until next Wednesday at midnight.

City police Chief J. F. Gregory said today the delay will enable the four forces in Greater Victoria to introduce their programs simultaneously.

Under the new law, a driver who questions a policeman's opinion that he has been drinking and shouldn't drive, can request a roadside breath test.

The supply of equipment for the test was just delivered to local forces today.

DISPUTED REZONING APPROVED

A bylaw calling for rezoning of The Latch property on All Bay Road, Sidney, was given final reading by Sidney council Thursday night.

The bylaw, which has been a source of controversy in the community for the past few weeks, was passed without discussion by a three-one vote with Ald. Norma Sealey casting the dissenting vote.

The bylaw means a subdivision can be built on the property.

MAN, WOMAN JAILED

A man was sent to jail for four months and a woman for 14 days today when they pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Harry Liddle, 1823 Chambers, was charged by Colwood RCMP Thursday evening while in his car on Glen Lake Road.

Court was told he was asleep behind the wheel.

Earlier he had been seen driving erratically on Sooke Road.

It was his third impaired driving offence.

Magistrate J. A. Byers also suspended Liddle's driving licence for a year.

Jailed for two weeks was Mrs. Francis Arnold, 1215 Lockley, Traffic court magistrate Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre also suspended her licence for six months.

Court was told Mrs. Arnold was charged following a collision Feb. 25. This was her second impaired driving offence.

A Different Home... A Different 'Me'

By DESMOND BILL

Foster children got personal this morning when they discussed what is wrong with present child welfare practices in B.C.

They met at the Red Lion Hotel in a conference sponsored by the provincial welfare department.

The meeting, first of its kind held in this province, was billed as a seminar on child care problems as seen through the eyes of the youngsters involved.

But from an intellectual discussion it quickly developed into what was practically a therapy session.

It started out impersonally and objectively as an analysis of the problems of communication between foster parents and foster children.

The youngsters pointed out that many foster parents look on their wards as "trouble" or at least potentially a cause of trouble.

Result: the parents are defensive, on guard, watching every move the child makes.

The youngsters, feeling they are not being given a chance and uncomfortable in the watchful atmosphere, "don't stick around."

As one girl said, "We go out as much as possible."

They have other problems. If they talk in confidence to their social worker, chances are the worker will reveal what was said to their foster parents.

Anyway, the only time they see a social worker is when they are in trouble, in most cases.

Prodded by Dr. Bennett Wong, a noted Vancouver psychiatrist, the teenagers admitted they have their defences too.

One boy who called his foster parents "two-faced"

admitted that "I'm phoney too."

Another participant, a girl, said, "If I had my way I'd like to live on a desert island with everything I want but no people. That way I wouldn't have to always explain myself to people or to myself."

Part of the problem is that many foster children live in a succession of foster homes. Lying with different people, they have to behave in different ways.

One said, "You are a different person with each family. How can you be yourself?"

Most of us consider birthdays a time for getting rather than giving. Today, let me present Abraham Gowler, a Victoria-dweller who, to mark his ninety-second anniversary, and as his own Centennial project, has reversed the process.

Mr. Gowler has been giving . . . and I am honored to be among the numerous recipients of his bounty.

Now, with a happy return no less hearty for coming two days late, I will let this other adoptive son of our city speak for himself in a few lines lifted from the paper of verses that accompanies his gifts.

"This is, as you know, our Centennial Year.

A time to remember, to thank and to cheer.

And you are aware that there's nary a doubt

That I have had much to be cheerful about.

For over fourscore years I have lived and died

Blest with a strong body and fairly good mind—

I have hearing and sight and can swallow my chow.

I've a bit laid by which I shall use NOW

And for my Centennial Project I plan

To share some of it at once with my kind fellowman

(And organizations that do a good work).

Including some saints I have met at The Kirk.

As for my own crisp and crackly gift, it has gone to a blue-bonneted lady called Sally Ann, an old friend who will put it to the best possible use.

Next dip into the mail brings up a letter from ex-Montrealer R. Shaw, who terms himself a visitor to Victoria and feels I dealt unfairly with Quebec and Montreal a while back.

"Perhaps among the Victorians we have met here while visiting your city this winter," Mr. Shaw writes, "there have been too many with still-existing ties to Eastern Canada from where they came but all of them are genuinely interested in Montreal's World Festival. Among your tradespeople we have found the same interest—many of them planning to go to the Exposition. We have met none who are 'waiting to see'."

"Granted, the eight per cent sales tax is a shocker. But every resident consumer in the province will suffer—not only tourists. And it will doom border town trade."

"Wasn't it simply human nature that some landlords would try that lease evicta deal? Don't you think it would happen anywhere, even—perish the thought—in your British Columbia? Do you know that a deadline date was set quite some time ago, on and after a lease tenant? If you know, why not say so?"

Mr. Shaw has more to say. Including richly-deserved praise for Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau.

Like him, I hope that for the credit of Canada abroad as well as the pleasure and satisfaction of Canadian Expo visitors, all will now proceed smoothly.

To this end, I trust there will be no more gouging attempts for Montreal's own La Presse to report, and for LogExpo to take firmly in hand.

And to visitor R. Shaw, no address supplied, a gentle correction. What's preparing down there, I find in biographical notes on R. F. Shaw, deputy commissioner general of Expo, is the Canadian Universal and International Exhibition, Montreal, 1967.

At the start of the week, I mentioned a sailingship called the Panther, which lies below tide line off the rocky tip of a little island next door to Salt Spring.

Fast as the mails could fetch it, I got a fat envelope from Salt Spring historian Garnet Young. It contains details about the wrecked clipper which I'll share with you later, and also some information about Salt Spring itself.

I never knew the island was once officially, but briefly, named 'Admiral'.

Its stubborn settlers, as Mr. Young puts it, 'scuttled' the Royal Navy's choice.

Steelers Need Backing in Football Bid

By DOUG PEDEN
Sports Editor

Victoria sports fans can have a better brand of professional football this season—if enough of them want it.

Indication of support in the form of pledges for purchase of season's tickets during the next month will probably decide the fate of Victoria Steelers.

Directors of the Victoria team, which performed last year in the Pacific Football

League and has been awarded a franchise in the new Golden West Division of the Continental League, announced after a meeting Thursday night that they are wrestling with these two main problems:

- Making arrangements to pay off obligations from last year's operations.

- Raising the $25,000 performance bond required from the league.

Originally the Steelers were to have paid a $2,500 franchise

fee by March 1 and the performance bond by April 1. "Time is running against us," club president Mike Griffin said today, "and the Steelers are asking other members of the league to give us a one-month period of grace, to May 1."

Today club officials were conducting a telephone poll of other franchise holders to learn if they would be granted an extra month to arrange financing.

"Following the poll vote," said Mr. Griffin, "we will be calling another board meeting, probably Monday."

"At that time the board will probably have to resolve this question:

"Is Victoria ready for pro football and able to support it to the extent of 5,000 fans per game for seven home games?"

Steelers are planning a budget of $105,000, which includes provision for paying of 1966 debts. They will play home games under lights at Royal Athletic Park with ticket prices ranging from $2 to $4.

Other teams in the division are Seattle, Portland, Eugene, Anaheim, San Jose, Sacramento and Phoenix.

"We feel we have some things going for us this season," Mr. Griffin said. "We will be playing night games and we will be playing in a new park, with better facilities for the fans."

"We are quite confident of support and the directors are convinced that since this is a community effort, people will be advised of the position of the club at all times."

With the Steelers assured of "substantial" player support and playing in a league that is expected to be joined with stars, Victorians appear in line for an interesting football season.

It could all depend on how they support pre-season ticket sales, plans for which will be announced next week.

Mayor Rebukes B.C. Trustees' Tax Manifesto

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

British Columbia school trustees received a sharp slap on the wrist from Mayor Hugh Stephen this morning.

He termed one statement made in the recently published manifesto on the financing of education "misleading" and another "ridiculous."

The manifesto, published over the signature of F. N. A. Rowell, chairman of the British Columbia School Trustees Association, claims that taxes on real property is the only effective means of fairly raising funds for education.

"The real property tax is an effective means of raising money for public purposes and is an appropriate source of funds for school purposes because it is capable of providing substantial revenue and capable of being varied in its rate from school district to school district."

— and there is no suitable alternative," the manifesto states.

"That," said Mayor Stephen, "is ridiculous. 'The whole consolidated revenue of the province is the alternative."

Mayor Stephen stressed that the views he expressed were personal.

"These are my own thoughts," he said. "They are not necessarily the views of my council."

The mayor expressed surprise school trustees would publish a statement advocating policies directly opposite to the policies advocated by municipal governments without prior consultation.

"I object to them putting out such statements as this without consultation with the Union of British Columbia Municipalities," he said.

Retain Authority to Impose Taxes

One of the claims made by the trustees is that they must retain the authority to impose taxes for school purposes.

"If trustees, through their school boards in their districts are to possess any degree of local control, they must exercise local financial responsibility by having the authority to impose local taxation," the manifesto states.

Mayor Stephen said he had long been an advocate of a standardized approach to education.

"I believe that every child in British Columbia—indeed, the ideal would be in Canada—should be able to look for the same standards wherever he may go to school," he said.

Statement Called 'Very Misleading'

"Under the present system pupil-teacher ratios vary from area to area, teachers' salaries vary from area to area and the schools themselves vary in what they can offer a child."

"If the financing of education was made a provincial responsibility, school children, wherever they happened to be, could expect and would receive equal opportunity."

Mayor Stephen noted that it had long been a prime recommendation of the UBCM and of individual municipal governments that the heavy tax load on property be reduced.

"This manifesto is in direct contradiction of those aims," he said.

Mayor Stephen termed "very misleading" a statement in the manifesto claiming that the municipalities of British Columbia include only one per cent of the area of the province within their jurisdiction.

It further claims that members of the BCSTA embraces virtually the entire province and consequently raise money for

SAANICH STUDIES 12-POINT LAW

New Bylaw Will Regulate Private Patrol Agencies

By ROGER STONEBANKS

New controls over private patrol agencies are expected to become law in Saanich shortly.

A 12-point bylaw has been recommended by finance committee and is expected to come before council for initial readings Monday night.

There is no bylaw in this respect at the moment and council has not yet considered the proposed bylaw.

In the past, efforts by at least one private patrol agency to gain a licence to operate in Saanich have been rejected by council.

PREVENT CONFUSION

Three parts of the proposed bylaw are aimed at preventing any confusion between private patrol agencies and police forces.

All written material used by such agencies must state in print not less than six point (slightly smaller than the type in this story) the following statement:

"This agency is privately owned and operated and is not connected in any way whatsoever with any police force."

In addition, no qualification of this statement shall appear in any written material.

Two other sections state:

- No private patrol agency "shall wear, carry or exhibit or suffer to be worn, carried or exhibited and no employee of any private patrol agency shall wear, carry or exhibit any badge or insignia upon any apparel or vehicle or elsewhere upon anything used in the business of such agency which in any way resembles any badge or insignia in use by any police force" operating in the Capital Regional District, which extends from Port Renfrew to Sidney.

- No agency or employee "shall use or wear or suffer to be worn, carried or exhibited or suffer to be worn, carried or exhibited in the business of such agency, any uniform, suit, coat or mode of dress being or having the appearance of being a distinguishing uniform which might reasonably be confused with a uniform in use by any police force" in the Capital Regional District.

All agencies carrying on business in Saanich must give the police chief the names, ages, descriptions, addresses and fingerprints of operators and employees as well as "such other information" as the chief may require.

A list of owners and occupants of all premises the agency patrols must be filed with the police chief, plus a supplementary list each month of additions and reductions.

The schedule of rates must also be provided.

No agency may use dogs unless the dogs are securely held at all times on a leash not exceeding 10 feet.

No agency or employee shall solicit business in Saanich before 8 a.m. or after 6 p.m.

Other provisions cover business licenses and security by way of cash or bearer bonds.

A City Hall spokesman said Victoria does not have a bylaw governing private patrol agencies, but they are governed by a provincial law, the Private Detectives Licensing Act. The agencies in Victoria must have municipal business licences.

Pink and White For Floral Theme

Arrangements of pink and white gladioli decorated St. John's Anglican Church when Canon Graham Baker heard marriage vows exchanged between Sheila Marion Newell and Thomas John Bowlware. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. Newell, 2623 Roseberry Avenue, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. O. Russell Bowlware, 477 Sturdee Street.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a sheath gown of white satin, styled with an overlay of lace. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Miss Beth Weatherdon was the bride's only attendant. She was wearing a dress of chiffon styled with a bodice of lace and a bouffant skirt. Her headpiece was a rose edged with veiling and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Tom Penzley was best man and ushering guests to their pews were Roy Scott and Terry Reichert.

Hollywood House was decorated with pink and white roses for the reception which followed. Bert Weatherdon proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Bowlware chose a matching coat and dress ensemble in blue tones.

The couple is now living at 1334 Esquimalt Road.

Twenty-two young people, aged 14 to 19, are in Victoria this weekend to attend a four-day Youth Conference in the Red Lion Motor Inn. All the delegates are wards of child-care agencies and are living with foster parents who are attending the conference with them. Informal discussions include views of social workers, foster parents and the child care program. At the same time the foster parents meet for discussion on their role in the program. The two groups also conduct in-depth discussions and hear authoritative speakers together. But it's not all work and no play. Luncheons, suppers, swim parties have been planned for them all and on Thursday the young delegates gathered in the Red Lion ballroom for a dance. Seen discussing the dance with one of the conference arrangers, Mrs. R. D. Phillips, at right, are, left to right, Chris, Vancouver; Diane, Mike and Judy, all of Victoria.

Home at Peace River For Newlywed Couple

Following their wedding in St. John's Anglican Church, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lynn Williams left on a honeymoon trip travelling north to Peace River, Alta., where they will be making their new home.

The bride, the former Jo-Anne Rita Halfhide, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril G. Halfhide, 3047 Balfour Street, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Reg Williams, 3075 Larkdown Road.

Arrangements of lilies and other spring flowers decorated the church for the double-ring service conducted by Canon Graham Baker.

Organist D. Woodworth accompanied the singing of the boy's choir during the ceremony and Mr. Halfhide gave his daughter in marriage.

Delicate lace trimmed the sheer capelet which accented the bodice of the bride's floor-length organza gown. Similar accents circled the controlled skirt and a sheer detachable train swept back from the back waistline. Her bouffant veil misted to elbow length from a cluster of white roses and she carried daffodils and ivy in her cascade bouquet.

Matching gowns of rose-toned self-embossed brocade were worn by matron of honor Mrs. Brian Prior, bridesmatron Mrs. Robert Brazeau and bridesmaid Miss Jo-Anne Williams. The groom's mother made their headpieces of toning tulle flowers edged with net. They carried tulips and other spring flowers in colonial bouquets.

The little flower girl, Shelly Stewart, was in a similar gown.

School Integration Defied by Alabama

MRS. WALLACE
... showdown

Support of Other States Sought by Mrs. Wallace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Governor Lurleen Wallace confronted United States authorities today with defiance of a new school integration order and vowed, "whatever need be done will be done".

She urged a cheering Alabama legislature to hand down a "cease-and-desist" ultimatum to a three-judge federal court which said nine days ago all public schools in the state, including their faculties, must be desegregated by next September.

And she asked the legislature, in a speech Thursday night, to vest her with authority to take over the schools now held by the state school superintendent so she can refuse to carry out the court order.

She said it may be necessary to employ more state police "in order that the children of our state be protected."

She asked legislators to consider appropriating funds to pay additional state police.

APPLAUD 20 TIMES

She was interrupted by applause 20 times during her 30-minute speech in the chamber where 106 years ago Alabama seceded from the union at the outset of the civil war.

Mrs. Wallace solicited the support of other southern states in resisting the desegregation order, but promised, "if we stand alone, we will go alone."

Paraphrasing President Andrew Jackson's defiance of a Supreme Court mandate a century ago, she said of the three judges who issued the integration order, "They have made their decree. Now let them enforce it."

Alabama is appealing the order to the Supreme Court.

There was little indication of opposition from the legislators. The lone Republican member, Senator Leland Childs of Birmingham, said he is "100 per cent for" the governor's promise to resist the federal authorities and added, "if it takes going to jail, then I'll go to jail for it."

REMAINS SILENT

Similar comment came from other members. But the state school superintendent, Ernest Stone, designated by the court as the man responsible for seeing that the desegregation decree is carried out, remained silent. Stone sat nearby as Mrs. Wallace spoke.

Her husband, former Governor George Wallace, watched on a TV set in her office downstairs.

No immediate action was taken by the legislature to translate the governor's words into law before they adjourned for a weekend recess.

In Georgia, another of the six southern states effected by court orders on school integration, Governor Lester Maddox also promised to fight the guidelines with "every legal move we can."

Appeal Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vernon Shimminousky, a member of the city's parking meter collection staff, Thursday lost his appeal against a conviction for attempting to steal $12.25 from meters. Shimminousky was given a suspended sentence after police testified the collector put some coins in his pocket when emptying meters.

TOMMY DOUGLAS UNOPPOSED AT NOMINATION MEETING

VANCOUVER (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national New Democratic Party leader, was nominated unopposed Thursday night to represent the NDP in the new riding of Burnaby-Seymour in the next federal election.

Mr. Douglas now represents Burnaby-Coquitlam. Burnaby-Seymour is one of five ridings carved out of three larger ones by redistribution.

Car Dealer Stretches Hearing's Credulity

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of a Vancouver automobile company said Thursday the private conversations of his customers buying cars would be of no advantage to his salesmen.

Weldon McFarlane, testifying before the royal commission on privacy, said an intercom system in his company's showroom was installed for the purpose of training salesmen.

McFarlane said his company, Zephyr Motors Ltd., requires a car buyer to state in writing information indicating his ability to pay for a vehicle.

Therefore, he said, there is no advantage in hearing a private conversation over the system, which was discovered by Sun reporter Moira Farrow and photographer Ken Oakes last January.

Commission counsel George Murray commented: "I find it rather astounding that you (McFarlane) consider this information that might be overheard, of no use at all."

Commissioner R. A. Sargent, a retired county court judge, said: "I tell you frankly I find it hard to believe."

Fraud Charge Unfounded, Say Probers

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Dupuy, commissioner general for Expo 67, said Thursday a provincial police investigation has discovered no foundation for any allegations of fraud in Logexpo, the fair's lodging service.

Speaking at a press conference, he said he has been told this by J. Adrien Robert, director of the Quebec Provincial Police.

He read out a statement by Mr. Robert which said:

"Our investigators, in spite of a lengthy investigation, have been unable to discover any founded charges of fraud or gross negligence on the part of those involved in Logexpo."

MANITOBA GOING FOR SALES TAX

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government won approval in principle Thursday of a bill to levy a 5 per cent retail sales tax.

The legislation, which will allow Manitoba to become the ninth province to impose a sales tax, won second reading in a 29 to 23 vote with all opposition parties against the measure. Alberta will be the only province without a sales tax.

Clause-by-clause study of the bill by a committee of the whole house is expected to follow next week in preparation for third reading to allow implementation of the tax on June 1.

Transfusion Hearing Put Over

VANCOUVER (CP) — The case of a young Jehovah's Witness, who needs a major operation but refuses blood transfusions, has been adjourned to April 6.

The unique hearing began Wednesday before family court Judge Earl Vance in closed session.

It involves Miriam Myllyniemi, 14, of Penticton. The girl is in the custody of the Children's Aid Society, which will allow the transfusions. But Miriam's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Myllyniemi, brought about the family court hearing by challenging the society's right to take over her daughter's custody.

He Bites Less Lately

WINNIPEG (CP) — Death was the possible penalty but the pup got probation.

Delinquent dog Cheeko, an accused Jack the Nipper, got his break from Magistrate Ian Dubienksi, who, under a section of the Winnipeg city charter, had been asked to rule on a licence bureau application for Cheeko's destruction.

New charges against Cheeko — his record goes back to early puppyhood — were that the 15-month-old tan mongrel collie had bitten two small children and an elderly man. But six months have passed since the latest offences, so the magistrate decided to give Cheeko another chance. He placed him on remand until May 31 when a report will be made on his progress.

Cheeko wasn't in court but his owners, Mr. and Mrs. William Young, gave character references and he was defended eloquently by counsel Manly Rusen.

More Newscasters Ignore TV Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Two more well-known NBC newscasters, Ray Scherer and Morgan Beatty, have joined Chet Huntley and Frank McGee in going on the air despite a strike by the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

But in Washington, state department sources said State Secretary Dean Rusk will not appear on NBC's international Meet the Press program Sunday if the strike by the 18,000-member union is still on against the major U.S. TV and radio networks.

Negotiators for the networks and the union have been summoned to Washington Saturday for mediation talk in an effort to settle the walkout, now in its third day. The union struck NBC, CBS, ABC and the Mutual Broadcasting System Wednesday.

The strike is over wages and commercial fees.

COURTENAY—A mother and three children were killed this morning when their car and a train collided at a level crossing two miles south of here.

Dead are Mrs. Betty Jorgenson, 39, of Courtenay, and her three children, Janet, 10; William, 8, and Donald, 6.

An RCMP official said the train was moving north while the car was travelling east on Fraser Road.

Police were investigating the accident, which occurred at 10:30 a.m. late this afternoon. There was no indication how the train and car collided at the crossing.

U.S. Rail Strike Ban

CHICAGO (UPI)—United States District Judge Richard Austin today issued a temporary restraining order barring a nationwide U.S. railroad strike by brakemen and conductors set for Saturday morning.

Austin granted the writ in favor of attorneys representing 66 of the nation's largest railroads who sought a federal ban on a walkout.

'Auld' Fails to Show for Trial

TORONTO—Police across North America are on the lookout for Barnett Auld, alias Auld, of Vancouver, who did not show up for his trial Thursday on fraud charges involving $125,000 in securities.

Police said Auld, who had been free on $25,000 bail, may be extradited from anywhere in North America.

Auld, 49, operated a hardware store before 1963, when a warrant was issued for his arrest for defrauding wholesale firms. He was arrested in Toronto two years later as he stepped off a plane from Europe.

VIEW ROYAL HIT-RUN

Man Surrenders
In Child Death

By DON VIPOND

A 21-year-old View Royal man turned himself in to police today following the hit-and-run death of an 11-year-old girl Thursday night.

Geraldine Melinda Jones, one of nine children of a Port Renfrew widow, died alongside Craigflower Road after being tossed 35 feet by a car which kept on going.

She and her sister Yvonne, 15, had been walking with their backs to the traffic about 250 yards east of Admirals Road.

Burly Soviet Defence Chief
Dies At 68

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Defence Minister Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky has died, Tass reported today.

Malinovsky, 68, was reported to have been stricken by cancer. The Second World War leader who stormed into Berlin has been ill for months.

The burly, gruff-voiced soldier had been noted in recent years for his tough speeches delivered from Lenin's tomb at May Day and Bolshevik Revolution anniversary parades through Red Square.

Speaking with an expression on his face that many observers compared with that of a bulldog, he castigated U.S. policy in Vietnam and West German policy in some of the strongest terms heard here.

Defence minister since 1957, he presided over the modernization of the Soviet armed forces with nuclear missiles and more recently with new ground-warfare equipment and an anti-ballistic missile defence system still under construction.

Analysis of broken glass from a headlight at the accident scene enabled officers to pin down the make and year of car involved.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said this morning an inquest into the death will open Monday night at whatever funeral home the family chooses. A post mortem examination was conducted this afternoon, the coroner said.

9 Island
Tickets
DrawnIrish Sweep
Set Wednesday

Nine Vancouver Islanders are in the running for the Irish Sweepstake grand prize of $150,000.

Of the 278 Canadians whose tickets were drawn on horses today, four are from Victoria, two from Ladysmith, two from Port Alberni and one from Campbell River.

They will know the final outcome next Wednesday when the Lincolnshire Handicap is run at Doncaster, England.

Holders of tickets on the winner will each receive $150,000, with prizes of $60,000 and $30,000 for holders of tickets on the second and third finishers.

All those who have drawn horses will get about $1,300, which goes to those with non-starters or horses which finish out of the money. The actual amount is based on the total amount in the pool.

The draw is the first of three held each year in the international lottery set up to aid hospitals in the Irish Republic.

Vancouver Island tickets drawn are: (number, non-debut, and horse, in brackets).

No one on the Island drew chances on the two favorites, Kibenska and Lucky Biscuit.

The family was visiting Mrs. Jones' mother, Mrs. Caroline Charles, 7 Cooper Rd. on the Songhees Indian Reserve. Geraldine died just a block from her grandmother's house.

CLOSE ON TRAIL

Police were close on the trail of the hit-and-run driver when a man walked in to the Colwood RCMP office just before noon.

Officers initially withheld the description of the car Yvonne gave them pending an intense search for it this morning. One officer said the description would only fit a few vehicles and publicizing it would unjustly point the finger at owners of similar autos.

Analysis of broken glass from a headlight at the accident scene enabled officers to pin down the make and year of car involved.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said this morning an inquest into the death will open Monday night at whatever funeral home the family chooses. A post mortem examination was conducted this afternoon, the coroner said.

WORST STORM OF YEAR

Snow Snarls Sask. Traffic

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan residents dug themselves out today after the worst storm of the winter dumped up to 13 inches of snow on the province in two days.

Saskatoon weather officials reported 10.5 inches Thursday after a Wednesday total of more than two inches.

Fanned by winds gusting 40 to 45 miles an hour, the snowfall was the largest in the city since 1962 when 12 inches fell.

Visibility in many parts of the province was about half a mile.

Dozens of motorists were stranded as highways plugged throughout the province. Three teen-agers, including two daughters of George Leith, Liberal MLA for Elrose, were jammed in a phone booth on Saskatoon's outskirts for six hours Thursday after they stepped from a train and could not be reached.

The sisters and Michele Proby, a friend from British Columbia, finally flagged down another train at 11 p.m.

The Saskatoon city transit system cut service well before midnight Thursday and spent many hours attempting to return stranded units to the garage.

Air Canada said planes had rent.

William James Taylor, 19, of Winnipeg, was killed when his car collided with a semi-trailer truck near Maple Creek, about 80 miles southwest of Swift Current.

Only one fatality was reported despite dozens of accidents.

First Hydro Hike
Since Takeover

By AB KENT, Business Editor

Electricity rates went up a half cent per kilowatt-hour today following a steady series of rate cuts since B.C. Hydro became publicly owned six years ago.

It will mean up to $1.50 per month added to domestic consumers' bills.

The increase will bring $7 million more into Hydro's treasury in the 1967-68 fiscal year, still leaving Hydro customers better off than they were before the takeover, the utility company said.

Instead of a $30 million a year saving as a result of the progressive rate cuts, the public will be saving $23 million, co-chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said.

At the same time, there will be a rate cut for commercial and other heavy users of domestic gas in the Victoria area, which pays a premium.

Among Canadian stocks, Dome Mines was up one, Canadian Pacific and Distillers Seagrams 1/2, Massey-Ferguson 1/2.

AT LONDON equities and gilt-edged stocks were markedly firmer on the stock market today under such influences as U.K. budget speculation and the recent strength of sterling.

Dollar stocks reflected Wall Street's mixed performance, with a lower premium again an unhelpful factor. Canadian banks tended to ease, after a mixed opening, but Bank of Nova Scotia was a firm spot.

AT VANCOUVER industrial showed strength shortly before noon today.
